LINER ARABIC SUNK, FEARED MANY HAVE PERISHED; BRITISH CRUISER AND DESTROYER ARE TORPEDOED

PRISON GUARDS HELD BLAMELESS FOR DEED BY GOVERNOR HARRIS

After Conference With Commission, Governor Says Any Prisoner at Farm Could Be Released by Determined Effort

$500 REWARD EACH FOR FIVE IN MOB

All Money in Reward Fund Will Be Used to Bring Lynchers of Frank to Justice, He Declares

Governor Nat E. Harris held an hour's conference Thursday with the members of the prison commission and went over with them in detail the manner in which Leo M. Frank was removed last Monday night from the state prison farm at Milledgeville by the mob that later lynched him near Marietta.

After the conference the governor said he had ascertained definitely one fact on which his mind had not been clear before and had reached two definite conclusions.

First, he ascertained from the commissioners the fact that Frank was not in the dormitory of the prison building where the prisoners sleep, and where Frank was employed, but that Night Will-liam Creen tried to kill him by cutting his throat, but was in an improvised hospital room adjoining the office of the prison warden.

This fact the governor asked the newspaper men to emphasize, as he seemed to be under the impression that the fact had not been quite definitely settled in the public mind by the newspaper accounts of what transpired at the prison.

The two conclusions reached by the governor and stated by him were as follows:

First, that the guards in the prison could not have prevented the mob from removing Frank if they had tried, and that resistance on their part would have been suicidal and might have endangered the lives of other prisoners in the building.

Second, that a delegation of the friends of any prisoner in the building, if they planned as well as the mob and operated with as much determination, could with comparative ease go to the prison and liberate their friend.

NOT A PENITENTIARY.

"The building at the state prison farm is not a penitentiary in any sense of the word," said Governor Harris. "It is designed primarily as a place to detain prisoners. There are very little, if any, facilities for resisting an attack from the outside, whether the attack be made by a mob for the purpose of lynching a prisoner or made by a delegation of friends of a prisoner for the purpose of liberating him.

"The need of an adequate building that will afford protection to the state both from within and without was stressed in my inaugural message."

The governor was asked whether he ascertained from the prison commissioners any facts that might lead to the identification of any members of the mob.

He stated that this feature of the conference would have to be treated as an executive matter, not quite ripe for publication, but he said he would like to be quoted as saying, along this line, that no effort within his power will be spared to bring the guilty to justice.

REWARD OFFERED.

"I will today offer a reward of $500 each for the arrest and conviction of any five men in the mob," said the governor. "The total amount of money at my command for this purpose is $2,500. The maximum reward that I can offer is $500. I propose, therefore, to use all the available money except $500 in offering rewards in this case.

Asked whether he had yet finished his prepared statement to the public concerning the lynching, which statement he announced Thursday morning that he would issue, the governor said he expected to finish it either late Thursday afternoon or early Friday morning.

The members of the prison commission—R. E. Davison, E. L. Rainey and T. E. Patterson—when interviewed Thursday, threw no new light on the manner in which the mob removed Frank from the prison. They expressed the opinion that the guards could not have prevented the mob from accomplishing its work, if they had tried. They declared the mob operated with such silence, such swiftness and such precision that resistance was entirely out of the question.

HANDCUFFS KEPT.

Concerning the handcuffs with which a part of the mob handcuffed Superintendent Burke, R. E. Davison, chairman of the commission, said today they were left on Burke's wrists by the mob and later removed by Superintendent Smith with one of his handcuff keys that happened to fit them

"Whether the handcuffs can be used as a possible means of tracing the identity of any member of the mob I do not know," said Chairman Davidson. "I have been informed, however, by a hardware dealer that on every pair of handcuffs can be found the name of the manufacturer and the number of the handcuffs, stamped into the metal, and that it is sometimes possible to trace handcuffs through the manufacturer and the dealer to the man who purchased them. At any rate, the handcuffs left

Chamber of Commerce Calls On the Governor to Bring Lynchers of Frank to Justice

The following resolutions, denouncing the lynching of Leo M. Frank and calling upon the governor to use the power of the state to bring the guilty parties to justice, were unanimously adopted by the directors of the Atlanta chamber of commerce at a meeting Thursday morning:

Whereas, On Monday night, August 16, an armed mob, after overpowering the warden, superintendent and guards, took from the state penitentiary at Milledgeville, Leo M. Frank, a prisoner serving a life sentence and hanged him to a tree in Cobb county, near Marietta, and left him there dead, Therefore be it

Resolved, By the directors of the Atlanta chamber of commerce that by this crime and its flagrant defiance of officers of the law, the state has been disgraced, its sovereignty insulted and a grievous reproach cast upon our civilization. It is no longer a question of the guilt or innocence of the prisoner, of the right or wrong of executive clemency, or of the life of one man. The question now is, shall we have a state government in fact as well as in name, or shall we be ruled by an organized mob which scorns state authority, overpowers its officers, and executes with bloody hands the decree of death agreed upon in midnight meetings of a secret oath-bound organization.

The law-abiding people of Georgia, who constitute the great mass of its citizenship, will not be silent or indifferent when confronted by an issue like this. What we are dealing with is anarchy in its most dangerous form.

If it continues no man's life will be safe. Today the mob claims one victim for one cause; tomorrow, unless this lawless spirit is curbed, a larger mob will claim a hundred lives on some other pretext. This spirit must be crushed with relentless determination.

Therefore, We call upon the governor and all officers of the land to use all the power of the state to bring the guilty parties to justice.

Resoved, further, That we call upon all true and brave Georgians to lift up their voices in denunciation of this foul crime and its perpetrators. Let every man show that he is on the side of law and order, giving no countenance to truckling demagogues who pander to the mob, and let every man who is a man stand ready to support and actively aid the officers of the law in stamping out the mob spirit wherever it is found.

CITY MUST CARE FOR ATLANTA DRUG FIENDS

Hundreds Are in Pitiable Condition, Following Federal Campaign Here

The effectiveness of the federal government's campaign in Atlanta against the unlawful sale of narcotics has resulted in overcrowding the city with the problem of caring for the several hundred rug fiends, who are in a pitiable condition as the result of the stopping of their sources of supply.

Wednesday afternoon Collector of Internal Revenue A. O. Blalock, and Dr. L. L. Prosser, city and other federal officials, were in conference with acting Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, who has promised them his assistance in their work for a suitable institution to care for the drug victims.

Dr. J. G. Hall, one of the city physicians, was in conference with the mayor Thursday, seeking a method of handling the dozens of drug victims, who besiege him for doses of morphine or cocaine, and some of whom become violent, when they are refused.

The city health department and the mayor have become alarmed at the situation, which they will likely place before council at the next meeting of that body.

CURE POSSIBLE.

Dr. Hall declares that if placed in some institution and properly treated that the younger victims could practically all be cured now that the general sources of supply are being cut off.

The federal authorities, Mr. Blalock announces, are making a census of the drug victims in the city.

How many will have to be cared for will be known within a few days. As the result of the recent campaign in Jacksonville, Fla., over 1,150 drug fiends were found in that city, and because of the larger population it is believed the number here will be larger than in Jacksonville.

Dr. Proneberger and the other officials conducting the campaign are of the opinion that the problem confronting the city is one of temporary only, as the drug fiends can be cured, and with the illegal sale of narcotics completely stopped, as they expect to stop it, the number of victims will be very small.

"The government is stamping out the illegal drug traffic," said Mr. Blalock Thursday, "and if some method of caring for the victims is found, crime in Atlanta will be greatly decreased, and great good will have been accomplished.

"We are trying to treat the victims just as kindly as possible and are going after the sources of supply.

"In Atlanta we believe that we have the situation pretty well in hand already."

MORE ARRESTS LIKELY.

The officials are saying little of this phase of the campaign, but it is expected that many more arrests will be made here, the campaign here ends.

Dr. Hall is very concerned over the situation.

"When victims of drug habits are coming out from the influence of the narcotic they crave," he says, "they are totally irresponsible, and will commit almost any crime to get the drug. In treatment they should be allowed ever diminishing quantities of the drug, but the city can't help them, for if they are given a quantity of the drug and told how to decrease the doses, they will not follow the directions."

As the result of the discovery by a physician of a plot of about twenty morphine fiends to raid a wholesale drug house here, special watchmen have been placed on duty there.

The federal officials state they are finding that most all drug victims are using morphine and cocaine, and that very little heroin or other narcotic is in use here.

ALEXANDER AIDS VICTIM.

F. M. Elliott, of 145 Chapel street, was in such a bad condition from the use of morphine when he was arraigned Thursday before United States Commissioner W. Colquitt Carter for violating the Harrison anti-narcotic act that he was allowed to enter an adjoining room in the federal building, where he was given an injection of morphine.

He admitted that he had changed a prescription from nine to thirty grains

FRANK'S WEDDING RING ENTRUSTED TO REPORTER

O. B. Keeler Says Ring Was Handed to Him by Unknown Messenger

O. B. Keeler, a newspaper reporter who lives in Marietta, has made public a signed statement in which he claims that the wedding ring of Leo M. Frank was delivered to him Wednesday night by an unknown messenger with the request that it be turned over to Mrs. Frank.

Mr. Keeler states the manner in which the ring was delivered to him as follows:

"It was a little later than 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, and I was in the front room of my small house at No. 305 Polk street, Marietta, and had just started the Victrola on a selection passionately adored by two very young members of the family—"The Robert E. Lee Medley," by a livey band, like it, myself. It is very lively and ragged.

"The band had just got into full swing when there was a step on the veranda outside the open door. Then a knock. I went to the door, opened the screen, and stepped out.

There was a man on the veranda. He had something white in his hand. The following dialogue took place.

"Is this Mr. O. B. Keeler?"

"It is."

"I have a note for you."

That was all. He spoke clearly and deliberately. He handed me an envelope. He turned and walked down the steps and away in the dark. He wasted no time, but he was not in a hurry.

I went inside. The envelope contained a small object of some weight that had settled in one corner. It was addressed "Mr. O. B. Keeler." Under that was "Personal."

Inside was the wedding ring of Leo M. Frank and a note, typewritten. I quote it from memory:

"Frank's dying request was that his wedding ring be given to his wife. Will you not see that this request was carried out?

"This note will be delivered to you by a man you do not know and who does not know you. Make no effort to find out his identity.

"Your article in the paper of the 17th is good—very good. The article in today's paper, evidently written by you, is also good.

"You are expected to destroy this note after reading it."

LOSS OF LIFE VERY HEAVY IN LOWLANDS ARE LATEST REPORTS

While Only Few People Were Drowned in Galveston Property Damage Will Run Into Millions

SOME ESTIMATES PLACE LOSS NEAR $10,000,000

Big Sea Wall, It Is Declared, Held Ocean Back and Prevented Repetition of 1900 Horror

(By Associated Press.)

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 19.—Only fourteen bodies of victims of the storm had been recovered at Galveston up to noon Wednesday and it is doubtful if more met death in the city proper, but the loss of life on the lowlands and in the shipping in the bay probably will reach over 200," declared Charles S. Flayden, staff correspondent of the Light, who returned here today from a visit to Galveston and Houston.

Hayden was sent to Galveston Monday night and was in the first boat to reach Galveston from the mainland. He attributed the small loss of life to the fact that the residents, heeding the ample warning of the government weather bureau officials, left their homes Monday night by the thousands and sought refuge in the big buildings in the heart of the city. The Tremont, Royal, Panama and Galvez hotels were crowded to capacity, while the upper floors of the new Santa Fe station, American Bank building and the Rosenberg library also held their thousands.

LOSS $10,000,000.

Estimates of the property loss at Galveston, according to the correspondent, reach as high as $10,000,000. There is a feeling of jubilation among the citizens, however, over the magnificent manner in which the sea wall withstood the fury of wind and sea. Great holes have been torn in the pavement of the boulevard inside the wall for practically the entire distance from seventh to nineteenth streets and in places the wall itself has been undermined, but these are things which can be remedied.

A big four-masted schooner, hurled in from the gulf, lies half way across the sea wall. The sailors from this ship were rescued by soldiers from Fort Crockett.

The greatest need the 20,000 or more people who remained there during the storm is food and water. At noon Wednesday it was reported there was scarcely enough water for last another day, and much of this would be required for baking bread. Nearly all the stocks of groceries were water soaked, packages of Uneeda biscuits bringing a price of 50 cents each.

Efforts to move supplies into Galveston are being made as rapidly as possible. It will be several weeks before direct rail connection can be resumed.

In the meanwhile, however, gangs of men are busily engaged in clearing the railroad tracks of the debris which is piled on them for the four miles between Texas City Junction and Texas City. The warehouse and dock people of that city have placed these facilities at the disposal of the committee of Galveston people and as soon as rail connections can be made, ample supplies can be sent across the bay in barges and United States transports.

SEAWALL HOLDS.

Refugees who spent the night of the storm in the Hotel Galvez said that at no time did the sea run clear across the wall. The waves thundered against it, sending the spray high in the air and the waves broke over the wall with terrific force. So great was this force, in fact, that the two granite monuments which were placed, the foot of Tremont street to commemorate the storm of 1900 were blown down.

In other places the iron posts had been bent double and the granite coping on the seawall had been wrenched loose, some of the stones being carried a block or more.

The wreckage from the shattered buildings, nearly all of which were of frame, was piled high in all parts of the city. Telephone, telegraph and trolley poles, together with their wires, made an indescribable tangle. It is doubtful if any of the public service corporations will be able to resume operations for several weeks.

Only a few brick buildings were wrecked, but these are of the older sort and in themselves not a serious loss. Not a new brick building in the city sustained more than trivial damage, although practically all the show windows were broken in and in some places roofs torn off. This occurred at the hotel Galvez, where several sections of the tile roof were blown away. The total number of house off all kinds, exclusive of sheds, which were wrecked is estimated at 500.

The work which had been done in the last fifteen years to raise the level of the island had its share in the salvation of the city. In one section of the residential district, in the vicinity of Twenty-Fifth street and Avenue M, the water did not reach the first floors of the houses and even the household goods escaped damage.

Stromboli Wakes And Spurts Fire; Lake of Flame

Ancient Volcano in Violent Eruption--Loud Explosions and Clouds of Smoke Startle Sicilians

MESSINA, Sicily, Aug. 19.—(Via Paris.)—The chief signal officer at the island of Stromboli reports the eruption of a large quantity of lava from Stromboli volcano. The lava is forming a lake of fire between the craters and the sea.

The emission of lava is accompanied by loud detonations and clouds of smoke.

Francis Joseph Celebrates His 85th Birthday

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 19.—The eighty-fifth birthday of Emperor Francis Joseph was enthusiastically celebrated today in Vienna and Berlin. Emperor William and all the German princes sent telegrams to the ruler of Austria-Hungary expressing warm and unbreakable friendship "in the good and bad fortunes of war." Emperor William ordered that the Austrian flag should be displayed in all German cities.

Owing to his recent indisposition, Emperor Francis Joseph spent the day quietly.

The occasion was celebrated at Austrian staff headquarters with a banquet at which Emperor William of Germany and the members of his military suite were present.

HIGH COST OF RUNNING FOR OFFICE MAY GO UP

If the schedule fixed by Secretary James E. Belcher is adopted next Wednesday by the city Democratic executive committee, it may have a dampening effect upon the ardor of some aspiring but impecunious politicians.

According to Secretary Belcher's schedule it will cost $100 to run for councel; $150 to run for the aldermanic board, and $250 to run for general manager of the waterworks department.

The expenses of holding the primary are estimated carefully and then the assessment is fixed by the executive committee. There are ten places in council and three in the aldermanic board to be filled by the primary of September 20.

The term of General Manager of Waterworks Zode Smith expires, but he is not expected to have opposition.

ROKITNO BARRIERS CRUMBLING BEFORE GERMANS' ADVANCE

Two Forts, 1,000 Prisoners and 125 Cannon Captured North of Novogeorgievsk, Says Berlin Report

RUSSIANS ARE VICTORS ON BANKS OF THE BUG

Petrograd Does Not Concede Germans Total Loss of Kovno, Declaring Only Part of Fortifications Have Fallen

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—A further advance on the part of the German army, which is attempting to capture the important Russian fortress of Brest-Litovsk, was announced here officially today. The statement says that outer positions of the fortress near Rokitno, before Brest-Litovsk, were penetrated.

Announcement also was made of the capture of two forts north of Novogeorgievsk, which has been invested by the Germans for several days. In taking these forts 1,000 prisoners and 125 cannon were captured.

Allies Land More Troops at Dardanelles; Many Slain

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Additional troops have been landed by the British at Suvla bay, Gallipoli peninsula. This announcement was made here officially this afternoon.

The war office admits that after twenty-four hours of heavy fighting, in which no satisfactory progress was made, the British advance was halted. Losses on both sides were very large.

The text of the statement follows:

"The recent operations on the Gallipoli peninsula consisted of attacks on the enemy's positions along the southern and Anzac lines and included the fresh landing of a strong force at Suvla bay.

"There is evidence from prisoners' statements that the Turks had been considerably reinforced, with a view to heavy attacks on us and that ours forestalled the enemy's by about twenty-four hours. Consequently the fighting was very severe and on both sides the casualties were very high.

"The landing at Suvla bay was well planned and carried out by the navy, but in spite of the fact that the Turks developed their greatest strength in the Anzac region our troops from Suvla

A Typical Eastern Comment On the Lynching of Leo Frank

Practically without exception newspapers throughout the United States, north, south, east and west, are publishing editorials severely condemning the lynching of Leo M. Frank. The following from Heart's New York American of Wednesday, August 18, is typical of what the New York newspapers are saying.

(From Hearst's New York American.)

GOVERNOR SLATON, of Georgia, was not afraid to deal justly with Leo M. Frank. Governor Harris, his successor, will not be afraid to deal justice with the ruffian mob that tore Frank from his cell and brutally murdered him.

Governor Harris has said: "All can be taken for granted that I will use my every power to see to it that the members of the mob receive fitting punishment for their crime. I will see to it that the authorities of the county in which the crime occurred are given every help at the disposal of the state."

These words will be heartily approved by every representative citizen of Georgia. That commonwealth no more condones lynchings than New York or Pennsylvania or Massachusetts condones assassinations which may occur within their borders.

The outcry against Frank was raised by hate-crazed irresponsibles in whose ranks were enough criminals to form out the hideous plot that resulted in Frank's assassination.

For this outrage there can be no toleration, north or south, east or west. To allow the murderers to go unpunished would be to abandon justice and set anarchy up in its stead.

If the offering of a reward for the apprehension of the butchers will facilitate their capture, it should be offered.

Never have government and law and order been more flagrantly set at naught. Never has justice been more ruthlessly trampled upon.

Backed by the opinion of the best lawyers of the land, and sustained by the enlightened people of the state, Governor Slaton refused to permit Frank to be executed while there still existed grave doubt of his guilt.

The man was not freed. His sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. There was a brief demonstration against Slaton, which was frowned on by all intelligent Georgians.

Not daring to molest a courageous man, the cowards who composed the mob retired. But among them were a few, who, encouraged by a spirit of sullen hatred and anarchy, plotted to overthrow justice at a blow, and glut their vengeance on the defenseless, even in the bloody history of lynch law.

Mobs are always cowards. The murderers hoped to strike swiftly and escape. They did strike swiftly. Waiting till the act of Governor Slaton in commuting Frank's sentence had been generally accepted as the wisest course, they organized a force sufficient to overpower the ordinary penitentiary guard, dragged their victim forth and put him to death.

The attack was not expected. The guards were easily overpowered. Night aided the assassins in the purpose, and in skinking to cover once it had been carried out.

Until every man who took part in this crime is found and punished, the people of Georgia will have a duty to perform.

Governments are not set up to be overridden by assassins. Governors are not elected and put in office to have their decisions flouted by murderous mobs.

There can be no condoning any lynching. A lynching of this daring and atrocious character is an insult not only to the people of Georgia, but to the people of the whole United States.

There must be no refuge for these butchers. To give them aid or comfort, to offer them opportunity for concealment is criminal act and should be punished as such.

For the authorities to rest while they are still at liberty would be inexcusable dereliction of duty.

Governor Slaton vindicated the honor of the state of Georgia when he commuted Frank's sentence, defying when he did so the threats of the men who are now cowering from justice. Governor Harris has again vindicated it in his courageous determination to hunt down the murderers.

No means must be spared to bring this about. While they have their liberty the honor not only of a state, but of the entire nation is at stake.

TORPEDO IS SENT INTO ATLANTIC LINER

Conflicting Reports Concerning Safety of Passengers and Crew--Germans Sink Two War Craft Off Jutland Coast

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The White Star liner Arabic has been sunk by a German submarine off Fastnet and it is feared a large number of the 410 persons on board perished.

The German admiralty announces the sinking of a small British cruiser and a destroyer in an engagement of small craft off the west coast of Jutland.

Conflicting reports of the sinking of the Arabic make it impossible to determine the fate of the passengers and crew at this hour. Some reports state that a number of the 410 aboard were lost, others state that all were saved, other reports say that the ship sunk in eleven minutes after the torpedo struck her and only eleven boat loads got away.

The British steamer Magnolia reports by wireless to London that the steamship Dunsley also was torpedoed but at the time the message was sent was still afloat and was picking up survivors.

Fears Expressed for Safety of Passengers and Crew

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The White Star liner Arabic which sailed yesterday from Liverpool for New York has been sent to the bottom off Fastnet, on the south coast of Ireland, not far from the point at which the Lusitania was sunk by a German submarine.

The Arabic was sent to the bottom by a torpedo from a German submarine. The torpedo struck the Arabic at 9:15 o'clock this morning.

The Press association states it is feared a large number of passengers have been lost. The message to the Press association says:

"Eleven boats got away and it is feared a large number of passengers were lost."

Available reports early this evening indicated that many of the 410 persons on board had been saved.

The first report was that all of the passengers and crew had been rescued by another steamer. Subsequently, however, it was reported that the Arabic had gone down in eleven minutes, raising the question whether it would have been possible to rescue all in that brief time.

A message to the White Star company late this question open. It said that fifteen or more lifeboats were making for Queenstown, and from this the company inferred that the greater part were saved.

The White Star liner Arabic was to have sailed from Liverpool yesterday for New York, but the White Star office in New York said at 1 o'clock this afternoon that no word had been received of her departure.

The Arabic's tonnage is 15,801 gross and 10,062 net. She is six hundred feet long, 65 feet beam and 47 feet in depth. She was built in Belfast in 1903 by Harland and Wolff.

On her last outward trip the Arabic arrived in Liverpool on August 6 from New York.

After the receipt of a cablegram announcing her safe arrival, the bureau of combustibles of New York City allowed the fact to become known that two sticks of granite had been discovered on board the liner on July 27, the night before she sailed from New York.

Once before since the beginning of the war the Arabic had a close call. A cable message from London on March 27 said the steamer had been pursued by a German submarine in the Irish sea, on the voyage which ended on that day. According to this account, a periscope was sighted on the steamer west in from St. George's channel, and it soon became obvious that a hostile submarine was in pursuit. The Arabic put on full steam and outdistanced the submarine.

On the occasion of the apparent attempt to dynamite the Arabic last month, the explosive, which was discovered by a private detective, was concealed under a settee in the women's parlor in the cabin accommodations midship.

MUNITION SHIP.

No fuse, denoter or wire was attached to the dynamite. On her recent trips the Arabic has carried far fewer passengers than in times of peace. There were 105 passengers in the cabin, of whom five were Americans, and $0 in the steerage on the last voyage to Liverpool.

The Arabic has been utilized to carry great quantities of war munitions for Great Britain.

Fastnet, off which the Arabic is reported to have gone down, lies close to the lane of steamship traffic between England and America. It is about forty miles west of Old Head of Kinsale, near which the Lusitania was sunk.

Survivors of Arabic on Way to Queenstown

QUEENSTOWN, Aug. 19.—Two steamers are expected here in two hours time, bringing about 400 survivors of the Arabic.

RECORDER TAKES STAND AGAINST PETTY THEFT

Binds Over "King" Cotton, Despite Lenient Attitude of Prosecutors

"I am going to put an end to petty thievery in Atlanta," declared Recorder George E. Johnson Wednesday afternoon, in passing sentence on J. E. Cotton, a young white man, who was arraigned on a charge of stealing an $8 bottle of perfume from Brown & Allen's store, corner Whitehall and Alabama streets.

Cotton was arrested by Detectives Bass Rosser and C. O. Cochran on the complaint of Dr. George Brown, one of the proprietors of the store. It was Dr. Brown who caused the case to be docketed against Cotton, who is also known under the pseudonym of "King Cotton." Subsequently, according to the evidence brought out before the recorder, Dr. Brown agreed to drop the prosecution. The attorney who represented Cotton made the statement to the court that his client had reimbursed Brown & Allen for the perfume alleged to have been stolen by Cotton.

"I admire the attitude of Dr. Brown in this case," said Judge Johnson. "It is admirable for a man to plead for leniency for one who has stolen from him, but it must be taken into consideration that the police department was not constituted as a collection agency. The taxpayers of Atlanta pay nearly $400,000 a year for the support of this department, and it is the duty of the department to prevent crime, and where a crime has been committed it is up to the department to bring the perpetrators to justice.

"An offense committed by one person against another is not to be construed as an individual matter. It is an offense against the entire community, and it is the duty of the courts to carry out the law, and thus give society the protection guaranteed under the constitution.

"There will be no escape of thieves from the law after they are brought before the court over which I have jurisdiction. I am going to let a jury pass on these matters, regardless of the attitude of the prosecutors. I don't believe in any morbid sentiment which condones a crime."

Cotton, according to Philip Johnson, an employe of the soda department of Brown & Allen, walked into the store in broad daylight, while the place was crowded, and picked up a bottle of perfume valued at $8. Within a few minutes after Detectives Rosser and Cochran were notified, Cotton was arrested and confronted by Dr. Brown. The man denied the theft, but agreed to pay for the missing perfume. The detectives were insistent that the case be docketed, and Cotton was carried to headquarters.

After hearing the evidence, Recorder Johnson bound Cotton over to the city criminal court on a charge of larceny from the house. A nominal bond of $100 was assessed.

It is said that a fine point of criminal law will be raised in the higher court. Cotton's attorney contends that under the state code the prosecutor has the legal right to stop further proceedings against an accused by urging a nolle pros in any case which affects the liberty of the accused.

LADIES INVITED TO FIFTH WARD MEETING

Members of the Fifth Ward Improvement club are urged to be present at the meeting to be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the English Avenue school house. Matters of considerable importance to all the members will be discussed and a full attendance is desired. All committees having matters to report on have been requested to be prepared with their reports Thursday night. Ladies of the ward and families of the members are especially invited to attend.

HIGHWAY MEETING AT GUYTON ON AUGUST 25

GUYTON, Ga., Aug. 19.—With the view of boosting and promoting the Dixie highway movement in Effingham county a big road meeting is to be held here August 25.

Official invitations have been extended by Mayor Kight to many of the executives in the towns of Emanuel, Bulloch, Laurens and other counties, and indications are that a large crowd will be present. Several cars of ladies are coming from Dublin for the occasion. Charles B. Caldwell, general secretary of the Dixie Highway association at that point, is co-operating with the county committee here.

ALBANY TO CORDELE HIGHWAY IS BOOSTED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ALBANY, Ga., Aug. 19.—The movement to build a modern automobile highway between Albany and Cordele seems to be gaining momentum with each passing day. Both Mayor J. Gordon Jones, of Cordele, who first suggested the desirability of the highway, and Mayor H. A. Tarver, of Albany, who has fallen in heartily with the project, are at work on plans to arouse interest among the people living along the proposed route, particularly in Worth county, at Oakfield, Warwick and other points.

SOCIALIST LEADER IS GIVEN THE IRON CROSS

(By Associated Press.)

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 18.—(Via London, Aug. 19.)—Political importance, it is reported from Berlin, is attached to the announcement by the newspaper Vorwaerts that Emperor William has bestowed the Iron Cross of the first class on Albert Sudekum, a Socialist leader, for bravery in battle.

Holton, and Miss Mattie Holton. The body was removed to Harry G. Poole's chapel and will be taken to Hawkinsville, Ga., for the funeral and interment.

Johnston; three brothers, W. R., Jesse and Matt Johnston; three sisters, Mrs. J. B. Mears, Mrs. J. A. Bickers and Mrs. J. N. Johns, and one daughter, Mrs. W. E. Mackey. THEATERS

Ann Murdock, who makes her first screen appearance in "A Royal Family," which the Strand is offering Thursday, proved herself exceedingly popular with Strand patrons Wednesday, despite the inclemency of the weather. It is a pretty and decidedly interesting story of love and war, with its usually happy ending, but portraying sufficient thrills incident to the whirring scenes to make it above the average picture of its kind. The role of the princess has tremendous scope for emotion and Miss Murdock has found the role quite within her ability.

In addition to "A Royal Family," the Strand offers as an added attraction for Thursday only "The Naval Battle of the Black Sea," probably the best naval war scene, or series of scenes, of the present European war. It is a piece of master photography, exceptionally clear and full of detail. The photographer was stationed on the flagship of the Russian squadron and the entire battle, from the departure of the fleet at sunrise to the attack on Sebastopol and the defending Turkish fleet, is shown in great detail.

In "The Cup of Chance" the moral is brought home so thoroughly that a real story with vim and snap is presented instead of the might-be-expected sermon.

Alice Brady has a part that is more than ordinarily intricate, and yet so natural is her acting, so carefree her dancing, that the beholder can not help imagining that he is witnessing a Circe in real life.

In the bright lights of the Rialto and as the premier danseuse of the day, Hope has come to love the bright lights and good times, and can not reconcile herself to settled married life, and soon embraces the opportunity offered by her theatrical manager and gives herself to him. They are discovered by the husband on the latter's premeditated, unexpected return to the house. The husband puts poison into one of two glasses of wine and at the point of a revolver compels his wife to serve one to her lover and one to him, she not knowing which one contains the poison. "The Cup of Chance" will be at the Vaudette Friday only.

COUPLE MARRY AGAIN FOLLOWING DIVORCE

Atlanta, Dawson, Macon and Far-Off Poland Figure in Strange Romance

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DAWSON, Ga., Aug. 18.—A romance that began in far-off Poland, drifted to the divorce courts of Atlanta, had another chapter added Sunday when Miss Frieda Eisman, of Dawson, became the wife for the second time of Dr. Samuel Stamper, of Atlanta.

The romance began in Poland when the pair were children at school. Mr. Eisman moved to America with his family, separating the youthful lovers, and located in Brooklyn. A few years afterwards the family of the boy followed their friends to the United States and the acquaintance was renewed, and ripened into love and matrimony, which event occurred in Macon after Mr. Eisman had moved to that city in Georgia. The young couple went to Atlanta to make their home and lived happily for awhile, when discord arose between them and the young wife applied for divorce, which was granted, restoring her maiden name and removing all disabilities, which left her free to choose her way through life. The court at the same time granted the young husband a divorce, but refused to remove his disabilities, and he could not contract a new alliance. They remained separate for a few years, when they commenced exchanging letters, which led to the erstwhile husband seeking and receiving forgiveness from his former wife and gaining her consent to remarry him.

Dr. Stamper is a student in the Atlanta Medical college, and will graduate as a physician in a few months. His wife will remain in Dawson with her parents until her husband completes his studies, when she will again join him and share his career.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK! CLEAN LIVER AND BOWELS MY WAY

Just once! Try "Dodson's Liver Tone" when Bilious, Constipated, Headachy—Don't lose a day's work

Liven up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleaning you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working; headache and dizziness gone; stomach will be sweet and bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and cannot salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of Calomel is almost stopped entirely here.—(Advt.)

EXCHANGE ADJUSTMENT ASSURED, THINKS PRESS

Enormous Shipment of Gold to America Part of Plan Agreed On

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Belief that a successful adjustment of the exchange rate problem now is assured is expressed by the morning papers, although it is stated the government has not yet committed itself definitely to any particular plan.

Several conferences were held yesterday, but there were no formal meetings and the men in charge of the negotiations declined to make authoritative statements as to the progress made. Presumably some delay will be necessary because of the decision to make whatever is done the joint action of the allies rather than of Great Britain alone.

It is agreed that any adjustment scheme will provide, first of all, for a shipment of gold in an amount which possibly will surprise both the American and British publics, the idea being to effect such a complete restoration of confidence as to make easy the flotation of a good-sized British credit in New York on favorable terms.

"The best judges believe," says the Telegraph, "that our present indebtedness in America is comparatively small, but it will be heavier before long. What we are doing in conjunction with France and Russia is to send such an amount of gold as will provide for all requirements for some time to come. Gold is not wanted in the United States for their banks are full of it, but the sending of a large amount when it is so little wanted must surely operate to cheapen money and when that happens American investors will be all the more disposed to take British securities."

SHRINERS CELEBRATE THEIR SEATTLE TRIP

Loving Cups Given Patrol and Band, and Pin to James Wilson

In commemoration of the trip to Seattle, Yaraab Patrol was host at a banquet at the Ansley hotel Wednesday night. Only the members of the patrol and the band were present.

A handsome loving cup, the gift of the commissioners of the Panama exposition, was presented to the patrol members through Captain C. O. Seamans, for the drills which were given upon the fair grounds.

A surprise came in the presentation of a similar cup to the patrol band, for their part in the spectacular drills at Frisco.

Both cups are massive, of hammered silver, with the coat of arms of the exposition on one side, the emblem of the Shrine on the other, and the name of every participant engraved thereon.

Among the prominent speakers were Forrest Adair, Potentate; Yaraab Temple; John A. Hynds, past Potentate, George Argard, recorder, Joseph Greenfield, Walter P. Andrews, William B. Wehby, Dr. Francis E. Vander Veer, Captain J. O. Seamons and others well known in Shrinedom.

A pleasant incident was the presentation of a diamond Shrine pin to James Wilson, of the Atlanta National Bank, as a token of the appreciation of the work done by him as commissariat of the special train.

OSCAR LOGAN IS FREED BY VERDICT OF CORONER

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

HARTWELL, Ga., Aug. 19.—Oscar Logan shot and killed his brother-in-law, Sam Burdett, Wednesday afternoon. Family difficulties are said to have been the cause of the killing. Logan was not held as the coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

COUNTY CHIEF DECKS HIS FAITHFUL MEN

Roses, Not Iron Crosses, for Fulton Rurales, Gift of Mathieson

The members of the Fulton county police force were decorated Thursday morning for the faithful and efficient performance of their duty and unswerving loyalty to their superior officer, Chief George Mathieson. The decorations were conferred upon the policemen by Chief Mathieson himself, and the beauty of each decoration, as it shone fragrantly from the lapel of each officer's coat, was impressive.

And after Chief Mathieson had decorated the members of his force, he bestowed his favors upon other attaches around the court house, not overlooking the early visitors among the lawyers. The decorations were roses from the hot houses of the genial police chief out Peachtree road—Rosehill, he calls the flower farm. The big bundle that he brought to town with him Thursday morning represented the first crop of roses that he has plucked.

FARLEY DOESN'T SEEM TO CARE ABOUT MONEY

Dividend Checks Waiting for Him More Than a Year Unclaimed

Several checks for real money are awaiting William T. Farley, whose whereabouts are at present unknown. These checks represent rental distributions on preferred stock of the Georgia Railway and Electric company, and have been accumulating since July, 1914, when the first of them was returned by the Atlanta postoffice "unclaimed."

Mr Farley formerly had an office in the Empire building, but inquiry there has developed that he moved out months ago. The postoffice has no record of a new address. The checks are being held until Mathe Georgia Railway and Power company locates the missing owner.

MOVING PICTURES MADE HER SEASICK

Motion Same as Ship Board. New Earth Fluid Employed for Relief

"Oh, I am so sick," said a lady as she entered a drug store and clutched a show case as though to keep from falling. A drug clerk hastened to her assistance and asked if she knew what the trouble was.

"It is seasickness. I got it at a moving picture show a few moments ago. It was a boat scene on a very rough sea. It made me feel just like I was on a boat. It rolled and tumbled. I have been on the ocean lots of times and seasick lots of times. Please get me a bottle of Vitalitas, open it and give me a teaspoonful in a half glass of water right quick."

Later the lady said she believed Vitalitas was good for most everything, but she did not know until her last trip down from New York that it was good for seasickness.

Vitalitas is nature's most wonderful curative force. It is powerful enough to drive out many of the most stubborn diseases, yet it is so mild a child or delicate invalid may take it. Diseases of the following type are swept away by Vitalitas: Indigestion, rheumatism, biliousness, catarrh, nervousness, debility, eczema, in fact derangements of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood.

See the display and sample Vitalitas today at Jacobs' Pharmacy, 23 Whitehall street, or write there for information.—(Advt.)

SECOND WARD CLUB TO DISCUSS RECALL

The Second Ward Improvement club will hold a meeting Thursday night for the purpose of discussing the move to recall the seven members of the board of police commissioners who voted to demote former Chief J. L. Beavers. The members of the Second ward delegation in council will deliver the principal addresses, and Walter McElreath, one of Beavers counsel will also speak.

Up to the present there has been no announcement of the number of signatures obtained to the recall petitions.

FLOYD SHERIFF, SHOT BY HIS SON, IS NEAR DEATH

ROME, Ga., Aug. 19.—W. G. Dunehoo, formerly sheriff of Floyd county, who was shot by his son, Henry Dunehoo, last night, is still alive this morning, though in a critical condition and growing weaker. The entire right side of his face was shot away.

According to the son's statement to officers, to whom he surrendered, the father, was pursuing him with a knife at the time of the shooting, and both men reached for a shotgun lying on the porch, the son obtained it, and fired at close range.

After two weeks in the country near Decatur at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Simmerman, where chicken and buttermilk and melons helped to make things pleasant, Matron Mary Bohnefield, who has charge of the women's ward at police headquarters, has returned to her duties.

George Washington—"Father of His Country"

EVERY AMERICAN knows that without "Immortal Washington our National Independence would have been impossible. Few, however, know that the greatest battle of Washington's life was fought to secure for his countrymen the Constitution of the United States. Almost immediately after the Revolution it seemed that all the great sacrifice of blood and treasure had been in vain. The original thirteen states refused to work in harmony, either in spirit or in law. The new Republic was tottering to its foundations. At this critical period in American history the most brilliant men of each state met in convention and unanimously elected Washington as President—undoubtedly the most momentous gathering of the kind the world has ever known. Here he displayed as great ability as law-maker as he had as a warrior. For months the Fathers of the Republic labored, and finally adopted our present National Law, which forever guarantees Religious, Commercial and Personal Liberty. This was in 1787. Seventy years later Anheuser-Busch established their great institution upon the tenets of the Federal law which Washington did so much to create. Like all of the great men of his time, he was a moderate user of good old barley brews. For three generations Anheuser-Busch have brewed honest malt and hop beers. To-day 7500 people are daily employed to keep pace with the ever-increasing public demand. The great popularity of their famous brand—BUDWEISER— due to quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor, has made its sales exceed those of any other beer by millions of bottles.

Visitors to St. Louis are courteously invited to inspect our plant—covers 142 acres.

on Burke's wrists are being kept at the prison, so that if they are of any value as a clue they can be used."

Resolutions were unanimously passed Thursday by the Atlanta chamber of commerce calling on the governor and all officers of the law to use their utmost power to bring to justice the members of the mob that took Frank out of the prison and lynched him.

Mayor Pro Tem I. N. Ragsdale, who is acting mayor in the absence of Mayor James G. Woodward, Wednesday night sent the following telegram to the New York World in answer to a request for a statement:

"The daily and the weekly press of Georgia is practically unanimous in condemning mob law and urging the governor to take action in the Frank case at once. He is investigating now, and will probably offer a reward tomorrow that will bring the guilty to justice. While a large percentage of our people believed Frank guilty, yet they are law abiding and heartily disapprove of the action of the mob."

Lynching Party Said to Have Returned Toward Roswell

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 19.—Unofficial investigations here are said to have established an alibi for practically every man in the city who, it is thought, could possibly have been a member of the party lynching Leo M. Frank. The only men known to have been away from their homes Monday night have, it is said, proven the fact that they were out of town on business trips. The general belief among prominent persons here is that Frank's lynchers all came from points far away from Cobb county.

Strengthening this belief is the report that W. J. Frey, former sheriff, and J. B. Wing, county commissioner, both have said that they saw the automobiles supposed to have contained the lynching party drive toward Marietta, and later back toward Roswell.

Mr. Wing is said to have recalled seeing the party drive by Roswell. Later, when on his way here to attend a meeting of the Cobb county commissioners, he is said to have passed the party returning toward Roswell.

Frank's Body Arrives in New York Under Guard

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The body of Leo M. Frank arrived here early today on board a Pennsylvania railroad train. More than a score of detectives and police were on hand to guard against any demonstration but few persons were gathered at the station. Mrs. Frank, who accompanied the body of her husband on the trip from Atlanta, was greeted by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Otto Stern, and others of Frank's relatives.

Frank's body was taken to an undertaker's establishment a few blocks from the home of his father, Rudolph Frank, in Brooklyn, where his parents were waiting. Mrs. Frank was escorted to an automobile and went with Mrs. Stern to the Brooklyn home.

Several motorcycle patrolmen accompanied the automobile carrying Frank's body from the station to Brooklyn.

Mrs. Leo M. Frank was met at the Brooklyn house by her mother-in-law. Only a few persons witnessed the greeting between the two women, and it was more than an hour later when the press ence of moving picture machines in front of the house caused a crowd to gather.

Otto Stern, brother-in-law of Frank, said the funeral would be private and declined to say whether it would be late today or tomorrow. A close friend of the family said later that the funeral would not take place until tomorrow.

Mrs. Rudolph Frank, mother of Frank, gave out a statement today, in which she thanked the public for the kindness and sympathy extended to the Frank family, not only since Frank was lynched at Marietta, Ga., but since the conclusion of his trial.

Mrs. Frank said she and her husband had received a large number of messages of sympathy from southerners during the past two days. She said the family now asked to be left alone, and hoped to make the funeral entirely private. For this reason, she declined to announce when it would take place.

The funeral services will be conducted by Rabbi David Marx, who accompanied Frank's body from Atlanta. Interment will be in the family plot at Cypress Hills cemetery, Brooklyn.

By 10 o'clock a crowd of more than 200 people had gathered in front of the Frank home. Police reserves kept the crowd at a distance from the house. The crowd was quiet and did not attempt a demonstration of any kind.

Mr. Slaton Replies to Remarks by Woodward

The following telegram was received from former Governor John M. Slaton Thursday:

"San Francisco, Aug. 19, 1915.

"Woodward's statement that my return to Georgia would be dangerous is an outrage to the state. Such declarations under the false guise of defense do incalculable damage and foster lawlessness.

"Everywhere I defended Georgia and attributed the feeling over the Frank case to chivalric sympathy with a working girl and a mistaken view that I had not observed court decrees.

"I granted commutation solely in conformity with constitutional provisions made for such a case when the trial Judge requested it and two supreme court judges dissented and new evidence was produced which the jury did not pass on.

"The danger is that the heinousness of an offense may cause the identity of the perpetrator to be overlooked.

"My action protected every white farm hand and white mechanic in Georgia from the conflicting prejudice of a drunken criminal negro.

"A human life should not be made the football of ante-bellum politics.

"Georgia is a great state, populated by just-thinking and law-abiding citizens.

"Mobs commit their depredations everywhere.

"JOHN M. SLATON."

Board Will Take Proper Action, Asserts Patterson

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 19.—Prison Commissioner Patterson, who spent yesterday in Columbus on an inspection tour, declined to discuss the Frank case in any form, other than to state that he did not know of the capture of the prisoner until it was all over. "The prison board will look into the affair thoroughly and take the proper action in the case," is all that the commissioner would say.

Statement Is Issued by Dr. Guy D. Compton

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 19.—After reading published statements criticising conditions at the state prison farm here, Dr. Guy D. Compton, prison physician, tonight issued a formal statement defending the management. In part Dr. Compton said:

"The statement published in the form of an anonymous letter that Chairman E. E. Davison, of the state prison commission, had told me that we should throw all medicine in the dump heap and use leather, is absolutely untrue. Nothing of the kind ever was mentioned to me. The further statement that prisoners have been mistreated or severely whipped is wholly untrue, for if such had been the case it would have come under my observation and been reported to the prison commission."

could not make very satisfactory progress before the enemy was able to move up considerable forces from his reserves and bring our further advance at this point to a standstill.

"Within the past week the positions won have been consolidated at all points. The spirit of the troops is excellent."

Kovel Is Now Safe, Says Russian Report

PETROGRAD, Aug. 19.—Russian successes on the left bank of the river Bug, where the Germans have been pushed back southwest of Voldava and in the region of Wladimir-Wolynsk, have allayed fears for Kovel (on the main railroad line between Brest-Litovsk and Lutsk) although government institutions already have been withdrawn from the city.

Capture of Kovno Not Wholly Conceded

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Russian reports do not concede the total loss of Kovno, asserting the Germans have captured only the fortifications on the left bank of the Niemen. South of the Bug the Germans are now before Brest-Litovsk, which is Russia's greatest military station and an important railroad center. Novogeorgievsk, which has been invested for the last ten days, is in imminent danger.

Reports from both sides indicate that a desperate battle may be under way along a line parallel to the Bialystok-Brest-Litovsk railroad.

On the British section of the western front there has been no serious infantry fighting since the advance at Hooge. The French, however, are more active. Paris announces violent artillery engagements in the Artois region, in the Champagne, beyond the Meuse and the Vosges. Attacks with grenades by the army of the German crown prince in the Argonne are reported to have been repulsed.

An Austrian squadron attacked the island of Pelagosa, in the mid-Adriatic, seized by the Italians early in the war. Attempts to make a landing were defeated.

There is no further change in the Balkan situation.

CITY MUST CARE FOR DRUG FIENDS AFTER FEDERAL ACTIVITY

of morphine, and was allowed to go on his personal bond for action later by the grand jury.

Elliott was in a pitiable plight. He had been accustomed to taking ten grains of morphine a day, but had been reduced to five. He was so nervous and unstrung when arraigned at the hearing that District Attorney Hooper Alexander himself suggested that the hearing be postponed and offered to pay for a prescription of the drug to relieve Elliott's agony.

Elliott's case has impressed the government officials with the plight of morphine users who are directly affected by the terms of the Harrison anti-narcotic act.

D. J. Gantt, revenue agent here, said Thursday that he was convinced that some method would have to be devised by which these unfortunate victims of the drug habit could be treated.

Victims are brought there in a terrible condition, showing arms pitted from their wrists to the shoulder with the needle, nervous wrecks from the habit.

CAMPAIGN GOES ON.

The government, however, is going ahead with its anti-drug crusade. This is directed particularly against a group of doctors and peddlers who are carrying on a traffic in drugs.

Yee Wong, a Chinaman, is held under $200 bond pending an analysis of a substance which government agents say is opium which they seized in a raid on the Chinese colony on East Hunter street.

Several other cases are pending and will probably come up for a hearing during the week.

British Cruiser and Destroyer Are Sunk

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—(Via Wireless to Tuckerton, N. J.)—German torpedo boat destroyers have sunk a small British cruiser and a British destroyer by torpedoing them in an engagement of small craft off the west coast of Jutland, the German admiralty announced today.

The admiralty announcement adds that in the naval airship raid on London Tuesday night important establishments were bombarded with good results.

The text of the statement says:

"On August 17 at 2 o'clock five boats of one of our torpedo boat flotillas attacked a small modern British cruiser and eight torpedo boat destroyers near Horneriff lightship on the west coast of Jutland and sank the cruiser and one destroyer with torpedoes. Our forces had no losses.

"During the night of the 17th and 18th our naval airships again attacked London. London city and important Thames establishments were liberally bombarded. Good results were observed. In addition, factories and blast furnaces at Woodbridge and Ipswich were bombarded. The airships suffered no damage despite the heavy fire and all returned."

The Russian retreat is not yet a retrieve.

President Wilson is an example of a man who, with all the provocation in the world, has not talked too much.

Galveston's Disaster.

In their season of disaster the people of Galveston and other storm-stricken places of Texas have the profound sympathy of the entire South and the entire Nation. The havoc to property is great and the loss of life, though much less than early fears expected, is distressing.

Yet, through the adversity of this hour shines the courage of a people who fifteen years ago emerged from a like calamity stronger than ever and who reared upon their ruins a city of which all America is proud. The spirit of Galveston cannot be crushed. The energy and faith of the great Commonwealth of Texas cannot be dismayed. From the wreckage will spring reconstruction, and from the hardship a renewed and creative valor.

War on the western front seems to be an armistice.

The country will rejoice that the loss of life at Galveston was not greater.

As the Russians View It.

Commenting on what it terms "the nonchalance" with which Russians regard the fierce Teutonic drive, the Literary Digest reproduces a number of singularly interesting opinions from the press of Petrograd and other cities of the invaded empire. Regardless of political creed, these journals while deploring the dearth of munitions strike a buoyant note as to their country's outcome in the war and insist that ultimately the very impetus of the enemy's advance will prove his undoing. This, for example, from the Novoye Vremya, of Petrograd.

"The Germans throw at us unheard-of masses of men and metal. They are exerting now all their strength in order to crush the Russian army and make it harmless for as long a time as would be sufficient for them to turn west against our allies. They do not take account of the enormous losses in men or the lavish expenditure of ammunition. One thing only is dear to them—time. . . . Our enemies are making haste. Our gallant army and its brave chief understand that, and are dealing fearful blows at the enemy during the temporary retreat. Our main concern is with the army, its strength and spirit. Its strength grows and its spirit does not weaken. Trusting in it we are not discouraged by the reverses of the time, but with undisturbed calm await the triumph of our cause."

Of the country's human resources, another Russian writer observes:

"No matter how many soldiers have gone to war, the supply of men capable of bearing arms is still enormously large. We have ample material to make up for the losses in our army. The Germans by their reckless expenditure of ammunition clearly prove that they need a speedy termination of the war at any cost. And we need its continuation. Each additional month, though not marked with success, increases the chances of our final victory."

However these views may be regarded they are interesting at least as expressions of Russia's virile faith in its destiny. Nor can it be doubted that the nation is capable of endurance and resilience almost unlimited. It may not be true that Russia "is deliberately enticing Germany to follow her back into those vastnesses from which no previous invader has ever returned victorious," but it is evident that in a prolonged war Russia's enormous supplies of human material will count tremendously.

Life these days is one European government loan after another.

"What is Carnegie worth?" an exchange asks. At least a week's cost of war, we should say.

Grade Crossing Perils.

The problem of grade crossings is serious enough even when trainmen and motorists alike exercise the utmost precaution. There will be accidents no doubt as long as unguarded crossings remain. These crossings ought to be abolished as rapidly as practical conditions permit. Meanwhile, however, the majority of such casualties could be averted by due vigilance and foresight on the part of automobile drivers.

It is well-nigh inconceivable that anyone not bent upon self-slaughter would dash voluntarily across the course of an approaching railroad engine. Yet, the New York Commercial reports specific instances of drivers smashing their automobiles through closed crossing-gates and plunging over the tracks in front of moving trains. "The Long Island Railway," the Commercial says, "is now constructing gates of telephone poles to see whether this will stop fools from imperiling their lives in this way."

The trouble about war protests is that they meet solid walls of precedent.

A Victory for Georgia Merchants.

Georgia merchants are relieved of a grave handicap and injustice by the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring the railroads either to withdraw the special privileges with which they have favored the grain dealers at Nashville or to extend those privileges equitably to Atlanta and other points in this territory. Nashville dealers have been allowed to ship carloads of grain from the West and then, after storing and sacking it, to reship it to Southeastern markets at the through rate from the point of origin to the point of destination. Georgia dealers, on the other hand, in reshipping, have been compelled to pay the through rate from the point of origin plus local rate to the point of ultimate destination. Because of this discrimination, Nashville dealers have been enabled to undersell Georgia dealers in the latter's own territory; and especially pronounced has been the wrong to Atlanta interests.

This case has been in litigation for seven years. Once before the Interstate Commerce Commission directed that the unfair practice cease, but the Commerce Court, which subsequently was abolished, annulled the order. The Supreme Court reversed the decision of the Commerce Court, and now the Commission reaffirms its former order. The resultant benefits to Atlanta and other cities that have suffered from the flagrant discrimination will be far-reaching. Our merchants now can compete with those of Nashville on a fair basis and in an open field. They have sought only their simple rights, and those rights the Commission has recognized and vouchsafed.

This fruitful victory is a tribute to the great value and service of the Atlanta Freight Bureau. Through seven long years the Bureau and its able counsel, with the support of the Atlanta Grain Dealers Association, have contended persistently for the city's shipping rights, and in its crowning success it merits the gratitude and congratulation of the entire business community.

Bountiful harvests assure us of plenty to eat, even if we have to pay more for imported champagne.

Russian-American Trade.

One of the especially significant features of America's foreign commerce today is its broadening relationships with Russia. Before the war the great bulk of Russian imports from the United States went through Germany, so that our manufacturers but vaguely realized the extent and possibilities of the market they were supplying by intermediary means. Well equipped with the facilities of finance and transportation in which the Russians were lacking and also singularly gifted with business energy and acumen, the German middlemen drove a wonderfully profitable trade, and Americans were content to sell through these middlemen without taking the trouble to develop new and independent routes.

At the outbreak of the war, however, these conditions suddenly changed. Germany was eliminated as a force in international commerce. The land of the Czar was compelled to deal directly with the big republic of the West. As a result, Russia has come to realize, as a correspondent expresses it, "how dependent she is upon the United States," and Americans begin to understand their vast opportunities in direct trade with Russia.

These opportunities reach incomparably further than the immediate business of filling war orders at extraordinary prices. The emergency trade of today merely prefigures the normal, permanent commerce that can be upbuilt through the years to come. "Russia's industrial development," writes an observer at Petrograd, "is a problem of the immediate future, and the opportunities which this development can open to the Russian-American import and export trade promises to be truly wonderful. But the Americans must be ready for their task." Further:

"The war is bound to bring about an enormous upheaval in the Russian national life. Even now, while the guns of war are thundering upon three frontiers, a new financial policy is in the process of formation. The industrial development of the country is a question of absolute necessity. This is the time for study and preparation, and the sooner this fact is brought home to the American business man, the better it will be for everybody concerned."

From every quarter of the world, come invitations to American enterprise and service—from the Orient and Latin America as well as from the war-strained countries of Europe. It is doubtful that in all history any people ever faced opportunities so spacious and fertile as those now fronting the United States.

When a man named Dollar is quoted in an interview, it is a case of money talking.

Editorial Echoes

The dreams of nationality and democracy have been far from realized; the path to their accomplishment has been strewn with failures. Revolution has succeeded revolution, reform followed reform, and the goal is hardly yet in sight. Democracy has made its mistakes and had its bitter disillusionments, and it has been far from meeting them at all times with wisdom or moderation. It still has its terrible problems, and it will, unquestionably, solve them terribly. But it will not seek the solution in autocracy however efficient; nor will nationality rest quiet under a yoke, however light, longer than to gain strength for new conflict, however hopeless. The hands of the clock will not turn back. Right or wrong, men will press forward on the new course and it is this which makes the ultimate success of von Bulow's and von Bernhardi's school of politics impossible. We may admire its courage and resource, we may respect its conscientiousness and ability which inspire its champions; we may even sympathize with many of the principles and traditions which it holds sacred, and regret their disappearance from a world which will in some ways be poorer without them. But unless the political development of mankind should undergo some radical and wholly unforseen convulsion, they are doomed.—W. C. Abbott in the July Yale Review.

Tact in Business.

BY H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

I SMOKE a certain brand of pipe tobacco. It is a "popular" brand, and by no means expensive.

One day, wishing to replenish my supply, I asked for this brand at the tobacco counter of one of Boston's largest grocery stores. I received the reply:

"Sorry, but we don't keep that. I can give you some tobacco, though, that is much better. We keep only the best kinds."

It was said civily enough. There was no thought of insult. But instantly the thought flashed into my mind:

"I wonder if all the clerks in this place are as tactless as this fellow?"

If they were, I could readily understand why, large though the store was, there were very few customers in it.

Tact is in truth a busines asset of the first importance. It is so important that all business establishments should make it a point to train their employes to handle customers and prospective customers tactfully.

Some firms already do this very thing. I have especially in mind a colossal New York trading corporation, with stores located in many cities. "Be tactful," is virtually the slogan of this corporation, and the financial success it is enjoying testifies convincingly that tact pays.

To be tactful does not mean that one should be cringing or fawning. It means simply that care should always be taken to avoid wounding the susceptibilities of those with whom one is dealing.

Even seemingly so small a matter as unconsciously calling in question a customer's judgment on a hat, a shirt, or a necktie, may mean the ending of all business relations with that customer.

Yet there should be no abject, deferential slavishness—no obsequious eagerness to sell a man the thing he wants just because he wants it.

If his choice is really poor, if he is trying to buy something which he eventually will discover does not suit him, it is just as poor business to sell it to him as it would be to criticise his selection by word, look, or gesture.

The proper course is to try—always tactfully—to turn his attention and his desire to something really more suitable, and to rouse in him a conviction that, after all, this other article is what he wanted all the time.

It is thus, and only thus, that a lasting good-will is established between customer and salesman, whether the salesman be working behind the counter or on the road.

Tact, accordingly, is one of the prime essentials of all first-class salesmanship. When we hear it said of a man that he is a "born salesman," it is equivalent to hearing him described as a man pre-eminently blessed with tact.

Nor is it only as regards salesmanship that tact is a business asset. The doctor, the lawyer, the banker, the broker—every man, in short, who is dependent on the good-will of others ought to make it a point to develop the habit of being tactful.

This implies, of course, the cultivation of self-control. No man who is not habitually self-controlled can be habitually tactful.

Consequently the development of tact involves a mental and moral discipline that has a tremendously beneficent effect, not only on a man's business ability, but on his life as a whole.

NO. 267.—PARAMARIBO.

The principal city and seaport of Dutch Guiana in South America, Paramaribo is probably one of the least known cities in the world, except to the Dutchmen who control it.

Perhaps the best glimpse of Paramaribo can be obtained rather early in the morning along the street that runs from the Waterkant to the railroad station. Here swarms the motely population of this equatorial city in all its strange variety of kind and color.

The predominating type is the so-called "Dutch Black," who varies from the hue of pitch to a deep chocolate brown, and is the descendant of African slaves imported by the Dutchmen. These are dressed, both men and women, in wide skirts. Next in number are the coolies, who may be East Indians, Mohammedans, or Hindus. They are clad in rags and in the serene dignity that belongs to all Orientals. The East Indians are a splendid looking people, the men all being finely built and many of the women beautiful. The latter wear immense quantities of gold and silver jewelry in the form of bracelets and ear and nose rings. The coolie of Guiana invests all of his surplus money in these ornaments instead of putting it into a bank; and when he has to raise cash merely sells a few pounds of personal adornment.

The most curious and interesting type of all are the so-called "bush niggers," also of African descent, who lead a wild and independent existence in the marshes and savannahs of the interior. They are a fine, strong people, and wear little or nothing.

Of white men—Dutch, English and American—there is but a scattering. In the years before 1863, slavery on a tremendous scale existed in Dutch Guiana, with the result that the Africans overran the country. They far outnumbered all other elements in the population put together. They became so numerous that their owners could not control them, and they ran away to the swamps and jungles, reconstituted their native tribes, and attacked their former masters for plunder and revenge. Numerous expeditions were sent against them, but all of these were unsuccessful because the Africans are acclimated, while the white men could not penetrate the swamps and jungles at all. Thus for a time Guiana was literally dominated by its slaves.

In 1863, however, slavery was abolished, and the descendants of the slaves now live very much as they formerly did in Africa. They have their own tribes and chiefs; they practice polygamy, the number of wives a man can have being limited only to his ability to support them. They are under no more restrictions than are the whites.

Dutch Guiana, despite her queer population, is commercially prosperous. Sugar, cocoa, coffee, bananas and other tropical fruits have long been produced their. Recently, wild rubber has been sent out in quantities, while her tropical forests, where mahogany, cedar, greenheart and many other valuable woods are found, constitute an untouched resource.

The Searchlight.

A cleaning attachment for player pianos and similar instruments, recently patented, is claimed to overcome one of the greatest difficulties in preserving the musical qualities of these instruments. It includes a pneumatic device and a suction device, and means for connecting them with the instrument.

Suction is the power depended upon for the production of sound. It it the motive force controlling and regulating the flow of air through the perforations upon the music sheets.

These sheets pass over a tracker board. The wear upon them, and the dust sifting in from outside, tend to impair the tone of the instrument. The cleaning device removes this dust by a utilization of the same air which produces the sound.

The invention is especially adapted to street pianos, and instruments used in moving picture shows and other places in which a great deal of dust is in the air. It not only improves the quality of the music, but prevents the loss of service resulting from the instrument being taken apart for cleaning, which is usually an expensive process.

ITALIAN POLICE BEFUDDLED IN WAR

BY HERBERT COREY.

ROME, July 20.—Traveling in Italy just now is like the wanderings of a blind man through a mystic maze. At every turn one runs his head against unforeseen obstruction. It is not that the regulations are formidable, but that one cannot discover what they are. In one town a rule is strictly enforced that is a dead letter six miles due east. Sometimes a regulation is published in the newspaper and nowhere else. As a result of what began as a perfectly innocent journey I spent a good share of my time under arrest. Reams of literature have been added to the archives of the Italian police. In half the police stations of that sunny and flea-bitten kingdom puzzle-headed coppers are probably now trying to memorize my mother's middle name, and to harmonize my allegation that I was born in Toledo, O., with the known fact that Toledo is in Spain.

"Can I go to Venice?" I asked Cook's man in Rome.

"Certainly," he said. "No trouble at all. No special pass needed. Just get on the train and go." I wanted to visit the little republic of San Marino. That was quite easy. One had but to change cars at Faenza—

"Your passports, signor," said the detective at Faenza.

He was one of these small detectives that switch little rattan canes. There was nothing wrong with the passport, but he stood about ostentatiously and watched until we got on the train for Rimini. Many small boys admired. At Rimini several detectives arrested us. We were in the war zone, it appeared. Therefore we were potential spies. Rimini has been bombarded twice lately by an Austrian squadron from the Adriatic, and Rimini is nervous. We were held under close arrest in the inn of the Leon d'Oro.

"You must leave on the 3 o'clock train," we were told.

But we wanted to go to San Marino. San Marino is a republic. It has been a republic for one thousand years. It would be a frightful breach of international etiquette, we pointed out, for one friendly country to prevent the citizens of two citizens of another friendly country to a third friendly country. Lots of nations have gone to war for less, we said. We did not wish to adopt a threatening tone, but if we were interfered with we must write a note about it. The police officers disavowed any desire to plunge three friendly nations into war. It was merely, as they said, that the diligence for San Marino did not leave Rimini until 6 o'clock the following morning. Meanwhile we must leave Rimini on the 3 o'clock train.

"But when may we go?"

They did not care. They washed their hands of us. So that we got out of Rimini, we might go where we wished. Wherever we went, they said, we would get into trouble. We went to Bologna on that 3 o'clock train. Next morning we were under arrest. The police wanted to know why we had come to Bologna. This is no time for sightseeing, they said. Tourists were not wanted. While we were being interrogated we saw on the desk a telegram from Rimini. It gave all the known details about us, down to the middle names of our mothers and that damning error I had made as to the true nationality of Toledo.

"You must get out," said the policemen.

They didn't care where we went to. Not they. It was no part of their duty to arrange a tour for a couple of loosed Americans. So we went to Venice. By this time our consciences were beginning to be bad, and we sat for five hours in the car without speaking to or looking at each other. An old gentleman with bristling white whiskers watched us suspiciously every inch of the way. At Venice it was a great pleasure to see that he was held up by a triple line of gendarmes at the gate of the station, who found his papers most unsatisfactory. No one spoke to us or looked at us. We might have been wearing the cloak of invisibility and the slippers of silence.

Next morning we were arrested. It appears it is a heinous thing to visit Venice at this time. Foreigners are not permitted except on official business, and even Italians must have special passes. No decrees had been posted anywhere to that effect. No warnings had been issued. One is expected to discover that he cannot visit a town by the process of visiting it and getting arrested. Our case was complicated by the arrival of the usual telegram from Rimini. We again told our mothers' middle names, and unconvincingly located the towns of our birth. Then we were given typewritten orders to get out at once.

"But—" we began to say.

Precisely what we were going to protest about does not now occur to me. Whatever it was it didn't get very far. The detectives all waved their hands at us.

"Avanti," they said in chorus. "Avanti pronto."

The day squad of detectives was at the station to see us off. As we left the unfortunate officer who had been in command the night before was loudly protesting to a court-martial of detectives that it is quite impossible for any one to slip through his cordon of guards in the manner we alleged.

"We did, too," we said, with our heads out of the windows. It helped soothe our feelings on the way to Milan. We felt a certain lack of appetite for that officer.

At Milan we wanted to go to the police station and present our permits de sejour. These permissions to stay in the country are issued at the first city one enters, and one must always be ready to present them when called on, according to the regulations. But at Rome they declined to be bothered with these permits. The police would not even listen to us when we sought to present them, in compliance with the notices posted conspicuously in the hotels. At Milan we discovered by asking that we might stay a day without offering the permits. In other cities one can stay three days. In others it is one's duty to go first to the police station and get permission before even trying to register at a hotel. Practically this is never done. One registers first and then goes to the station. At some stations one must have papers before one can enter the railway station to take a train. In others—Bologna, for example—one can leave even for places in the zone of war by merely having the railway ticket punched. It isn't confusing, for there isn't system enough about it to confuse one. We just went ahead and got arrested or didn't get arrested as the case might be. No one could ever say in advance what might happen.

In contrast with this was the ease of entrance to the country. The first man who examined my passport may have read my name before he stamped it. He certainly did not compare my brands and earmarks with those set forth on the paper. The customs examination was a joke. The examiner just mussed up my clothes with one hand and then shut the bag. But before I got into Rome my luggage was pretty thoroughly examined. At Rimini my belongings were examined after arrest by the soldiers who had me in charge. No one thought to examine them on my way into this fortified town. No examiners looked at them in Venice, but in Milan an important official turned out even my postcards.

Casual and innocent strangers such as we were can always be detected by the detectives, because the hotel keepers report the vital statistics of each arriving guest. But just how it is possible for the Italian police to keep tab on a real spy—a spy with intelligence and resource and local knowledge—it is impossible to see. If I were to form an opinion on the little I have seen of Italian police work I would hold that these gentry could not track a cow through a swamp.

MOBILIZING THE PHILOSOPHERS

(New York Evening Post.)

EARLY in the war Friedrich Nietzsche was made responsible for the great European tragedy. Sympathizers with the allies found the case a simple one: Modern Germany made the war and Friedrich Nietzsche made modern Germany. To this argument only two demurrers are possible. It may be denied that Germany is responsible for the war, and it may be denied that Nietzsche is responsible for Germany. Upon the first question there has been a vast outpouring of documentary evidence. But no one has thought of issuing a Nietzsche White or Blue Book. On another page the Evening Post prints today copious quotations from the writings of the anarch of modern philosophy. We find there a fair basis for determining to what extent the Nietzschean doctrines are the motive force behind the 42-centimeter guns and the invasion of Belgium.

At first sight th case is overwhelmingly one-sided. If one reads what Nietzsche himself said about things German—culture and philosophy, scholarship and manners, cookery and statecraft—there is no apparent need for the jury to leave the box. Nietzsche was more anti-German than Mr. Wells ever dreamed of being. If one reads what Nietzsche has to say in praise of French art and letters and culture and the French spirit, there is good ground for believing that if the mad philosopher were alive today he would be inside of a French uniform. If this problem about pure Nietzsche and Germanism were to be decided on points as debates and prize-fights are decided, then in the selections we print today, gathered without prejudice by one who knows, the score would run ten points anti-German to one pro-German.

But a question like the present cannot be decided on points. One man will have it all his own way through nineteen rounds and succumb to a knock-out in the twentieth. So after we read in Nietzsche that the Germans are the great retarders of civilization, that Wagner was decadent and Kant a "calamity of web-spinning," that charlatanism flourishes in Germany, that empire is snobbery, that German scholarship is the triumph of mediocrity, that German intelligence suffers from too much beer, we come across a single assertion that throws all these affirmations out of court; as for example:

The Brandenburg nobility and the Prussian nobility in general (and the peasant of certain north German districts) comprise at present the most manly natures in Germany. • • • The future of German culture rests with the sons of the Prussian officers.

What is there to be said? Every vice and fault that Nietzsche has cited against the vast majority of the German nation at once fits into the scheme. On the one hand, a vast mob of heavy feeders, mediocre thinkers, prosy, "moral," taxpaying, loyal citizens; on the other hand, a small class of manly Prussian officers, exempt from accepted moral obligations, strong in will, directing that great mass of stupid, slow-thinking loyalty to their own ends—is not that a picture of present-day Germany which the bitterest critic of the kaiser would be more than content with?

But here again we must not be overhasty. Supposing that Nietzsche approved of the Prussian junker and disapproved of German music, scholarship, and philosophy; supposing that the Germany of today is a nation of slave-folk directed by a band of supermen; to what extent is Nietzsche responsible for such a state of affairs? The answer is evident. He is not at all responsible. For the main element in the German life and culture of which Nietzsche approves antedates him by hundreds of years. Prussian junkerdom does not own Nietzsche for its spiritual father. It goes back to Frederick the Great and beyond. It was established in the wars of Brandenburg against the surrounding Slaventum, in the wars of the Teutonic Order, in the campaigns of the Great Elector. If Nietzsche had not lived, the Prussian military officer would yet have flourished today. Possibly there has come from Nietzsche a philosophic justification for militarist ascendency. The theory of the Overman has probably influenced the literary apologists for the Prussian officer and the policy of blood and iron. But it is a case of theory being shaped to suit a fact and not a fact arising out of a philosophy.

The truth is, of course, that it is dangerous to cite any philosopher or moralist as responsible for this or that particular social development. More close-knit theorists than the aphoristic and self-contradictory Nietzsche have suffered the fate of being quoted on both sides of the case. As a general rule it is safe to assert that the philosopher is apt to be disguised by the practical application of his ideas. More than the artist to whom the completed picture is but a wretched realization of the idea that burns in his mind, the philosopher is condemned to see his theories embodied in that most impenetrable of plastic material—weak human nature. It is a vice of institutionalism to which we must reconcile curselves. Nietzsche, if he were alive today, would in all probability invoke a plague on both your houses, those who would make him out anti-German and those who would make him out pro-German—unless he gave the lie to all his theories by succumbing to the limitations of his human nature and shouldered a German musket like so many of the Socialist orators who spoke so roughly as Nietzsche did about the Germany of William II.

QUIPS AND QUIDDITIES

At the funeral of Baron Lionel de Rothschild, father of the late Lord Rothschild, a poor old man wept loudly and bitterly.

"Why are you crying?" inquired a bystander. "You are no relation of Rothschild."

"No," howled the mourner, "that's just why I'm crying."

Two old Scotsmen were one day disputing as to who remembered the windier day.

"I mind it bein' sic a win'," said one, "that it took the craws three 'oors to flee hame frae the dominie's field, an' that's no mair than a mile."

"Hoot mon!" the other replied. "I've seen it that windy that the craws had to walk hame."

A traveler, finding that he had a couple of hours in Dublin, called a cab and told the driver to drive him around for two hours. At first all went well, but soon the driver began to whip up his horse so that they narrowly escaped collisions.

"What's the matter?" demanded the passenger. "Why are you driving so recklessly? I'm in no hurry."

"Ah, g'wan wid yez," retorted the cabby. "D'ye think that I'm going to put in me whole day drivin' ye around for two hours? Gitap!"

A guest was expected for dinner and Bobby had received 6 cents as the price of his silence during the meal. He was as quiet as a mouse until, discovering that his favorite dessert was being served, he could no longer curb his enthusiasm. He drew the coin from his pocket and rolling it across the table, exclaimed, "Here's your nickel, mamma, I'd rather talk."

Once, years ago, in a Butte City convention, the gentlemen from the Green Isle had things so entirely their own way that they did not propose to give any other nationality a representative on the ticket. Finally, when all the available material was used up, a delegate arose, it is related, and nominated Patrick O'Hara for justice of the peace. "Who is Patrick O'Hara and where does he live?" inquired a delegate. "He's a friend of mine and he lives in Ireland," was the reply, "but he'll be over on the next steamer."

A somewhat inebriated man walked into a main line ticket office recently and, smugly smiling, showed a $1 bill to the agent.

"Where do you want to go?" inquired the latter.

Reflection for a moment, the inebriated one suddenly had an inspiration. Broadly grinning now, he asked:

"What trains have you?"—National Food Magazine.

A well meaning florist was the cause of much embarrassment to a young man who was in love with a rich and beautiful girl.

It appears that one afternoon she informed the young man that the next day would be her birthday, whereupon the suitor remarked that he would the next morning send her some roses, one rose for each year.

That night he wrote a note to his florist, ordering the delivery of twenty roses for the young woman. The florist himself filled the order and, thinking to improve on it, said to his clerk:

"Here's an order from young Jones for twenty roses. He's one of my best customers, so I'll throw in ten more for good measure."

SCHOOL REGISTRATION IS WELL UNDER WAY

No Confusion Anticipated When School Opens on September 13th

The public school department is completing its preparations for the opening of another school year on September 12.

Superintendent L. M. Landrum states that the registration is further advanced now than it was at the same time last year, and as a result much confusion attending the opening of a new school year may be eliminated this fall.

Pupils who have not attended the schools before will stand their grade examinations on September 10.

Under the new system of medical inspection, the physical examinations of the children will begin on August 23. While the examinations under the old system took most of the school year, some children not being examined until as late as May, it is expected that this work will be completed this year in the first two months.

The following schedule has been made to show where the physicians will be from August 23 until September 10 and the children are urged to report to them for examination:

Monday, August 23, from 9 to 1 p. m.—Williams Street, Oakland City, Highland and Georgia Avenue.

Tuesday, August 24, from 9 to 1 p. m.—Ivy Street, George W. Adair, Greenwood Avenue and Ira Street.

Wednesday, August 25, from 9 to 1 p. m.—Calhoun Street, Stewart Avenue, North Avenue and Crew Street.

Thursday and Friday, August 26 and 27, from 9 to 1 p. m.—Tenth Street, Hill Street, Lee Street and Davis Street.

Monday, August 30, from 9 to 1 p. m.—Bell Street, Glenn Street, Boulevard and Formwalt Street.

PEACE CONFERENCE IN MEXICO NOW PROBABLE

Villa Indicates Willingness to Enter Negotiations to End Strife

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Further responses to the Pan-American appeal for a peace conference among the Mexican factions were received at the state department today, including that of General Villa, which was said to be favorable. With the presentation by Enrique C. Llorente, the Villa agent here, of his chief's answer together with his own, to Secretary Lansing, three responses to the appeal had been received. The other came from General Cantu, Villa governor of Lower California, which was also said to be favorable.

The general understanding here is that Carranza's response, which is now being prepared, as well as those of his principal generals, will be a joint plea for recognition of the constitutional government in Mexico. Their plea, it was said, would be based upon the ground that the constitutionalists are in control of a large part of Mexico and that only through them can permanent peace be established.

MEXICANS IN ARGENTINE COMMEND HER ATTITUDE

(By Associated Press.)

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 19.—A telegram expressing satisfaction at the attitude of Argentina in the Mexican conference held by representatives of the United States and Central and South American republics has been sent to Foreign Minister Muratore by the Mexican Trade union.

The message follows: "All the Mexican laborers send to the Argentine government the expression of their thankfulness for the noble attitude adopted by Argentina, when she declared at the Washington conference that every act must be eliminated which would mean interference with Mexican internal affairs, especially every intention of armed intervention.

"This declaration is a guarantee for us and for all Latin-Americas. This is why the name of Argentina vibrates on this Anahuac soil and fills with enthusiasm the hearts of the Mexicans, who, from this attitude, perceive that the soul of Latin-America does not die, does not degenerate."

MACHINISTS IN TANGLE OVER MUNITION PLANS

Keppler Wants Strike and Others Urge Campaign for 8-Hour Day

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—When the executive board of the International Association of Machinists met in continuation of its sessions here today, J. J. Keppler, vice president of the organization, was on hand ready to urge his proposal for a national strike in munition plants of the country to enforce the eight-hour day, despite the board's action yesterday in repudiating the proposal. The board, however, decided to conduct a general campaign for a shorter workday in all shops.

W. H. Johnson, international president, who was authorized to disavow the strike project, said that an interview attributed to Keppler declaring that he would urge a strike was unauthorized by the association and was at variance with its policy. "We have not declared for a general strike," Mr. Johnson added. "In fact, we will use every means to prevent such a development."

UNCLE SAM'S MARINES CONTROL HAITIAN TOWN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—One company of American marines has landed at St. Marc, Haiti, and taken control of the town. An attempt to oppose the landing failed.

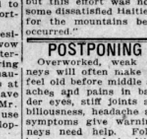

The navy department issued this statement:

"Admiral Caperton has reported that the United States steamship Castine landed one company of marines at St. Marc, Haiti, and has assumed control of that town. The occupation of St. Marc will serve to guard the food supply for the city of Port-au-Prince. Among the dissatisfied residents of St. Marc an attempt was made to organize an armed opposition to the landing force, but this effort was not successful and some dissatisfied Haitiens with arms left for the mountains before the landing occurred."

HOLLYHOCKS

"Why, I think they're just the est flower! They make me think of sweet young girl! Not the sassy pow- red things that sometimes go past ere, nor ugly, bony girls." Did her es rest pointedly on Martha herself, ll, stiff and thin?

Martha set her lips tightly. She knew hat ugly and bony came perilously ear describing herself. Only thick lack hair and big black eyes redeemed er white face. And her eyes were too ullen to be attractive.

"But hollyhocks—" Mrs. Crelly sniffed nd waddled home.

Martha bent over the hollyhocks with n affection that was almost fierce. Never before had she acknowledged to herself, that in a way hollyhocks re- minded her of herself; but now she ad- mitted it. Not that she was as beauti- ful. There was no soft white or beauti- ful pink in her face. But she, too, was tiff and unlovable. And as for the gaudy lothes that she used to flaunt. Well, she didn't care. She liked bright colors ich reds and vivid pinks. Of course she had learned in dismay that bright red serge produces an altogether differ- ent effect from shimmery, bright red chiffon. It was her misfortune that whereas she could afford serge she could only dream of the chiffon. There were times when she would have liked to ex- plain to Jad Hemmers that it was a tense longing for chiffon that had been compelled to satisfy itself with serge. There were other times when she hated the recollection of that gaudy serge, and incidentally hated Jad Hemmers, too; and psychologically, she would acknowl- edge no deeper reason—she hated Ethel Brays, who could afford chiffon of every delectable shade and wore it—pale pink, bright pink, purple, from rich darkness to dainty lavenders—and was not at all gaudy, but a pleasure to the eye of every beholder.

"I want you flowers."

Thinking of Ethel as she dug ten- derly around the flowers, Martha look- ed up to see her standing there, well dressed, pretty as the flowers them- selves. She smiled genially. Martha was suprised. Not since they both graduated years before had Ethel ever condescended to come to her home. So she waited gravely for the reason. "I want your flowers," said Ethel auda- ciously. "I'm giving a party and these would make a sensation massed in the corners."

"You can't have them."

"Please, Martha!" Ethel pleaded smilingly. She had a pretty smile, Martha had seen her smile many times in that same way at Jad Hemmers, and many times had quickly looked away.

"I couldn't," said Martha firmly. "I'd have no garden left."

"I'd pay you well."

"No."

Ethel pouted. She was not used to refusal. "Haven't I got anything you'll trade them for?" she asked whimsically. "I've set my heart on them. I've plan- ned everything to fit that color scheme. Even my dress," with sudden gloom. "Only it doesn't suit my complexion, so I have to wear white. It was a love- ly dress"—Ethel was a talkative creature—"all pink and rose and red chiffon."

"Oh!" Martha could not restrain the cry. And a sudden daring thought came into her mind. "I'll give you my holly- hocks for the dress," she said boldly. "And it would be an even exchange, too," she added proudly. "The flowers are as lovely—no matter what it is—and I have to give them up." She jeal- ously fingered a broad red blossom be- sides her. "But—I've always wanted a dress just like them. Oh, not to wear," reading amusement in Ethel's eyes. "I know how I'd look wearing it!"

Ethel Bray's father owned the big- gest dry goods store in town. Most of the profits went on Ethel's pretty back in the shape of choicer dry goods than the small town saw on that store's counters. But Ethel's father didn't mind.

Ethel regarded her steadily. Her amusement faded. "Well, do you want to?" coldly.

"I'm glad to," said Ethel promptly. "I'll bring it over this afternoon."

"I'll have the flowers cut and bunch- ed."

But there was regret already in her voice, which may have been the reason that Ethel hurried away before a change of purpose came.

In the afternoon she came back with the dress and with a queer look in her pretty eyes she insisted on Martha try- ing it on. Then she looked at her. "Martha, you're a dream! I wouldn't know you! You've got to come to my party. It's a fancy dress affair, you know! You'll be a hit! Why, the dress suits you! You look—like—like a holly- hock!"

Martha looked at herself in the mir- ror. It was true. It was not vanity that made her stare at herself, though. She was staring at the dress—the gaudi- ness that was too sheer and beautiful to be gaudiness, and that beautified her stiffness as the gaudy round blossoms beautify the stiff hollyhock stalks.

"You've got to come," persisted Ethel. "I guess Jad was right. I want him to see you."

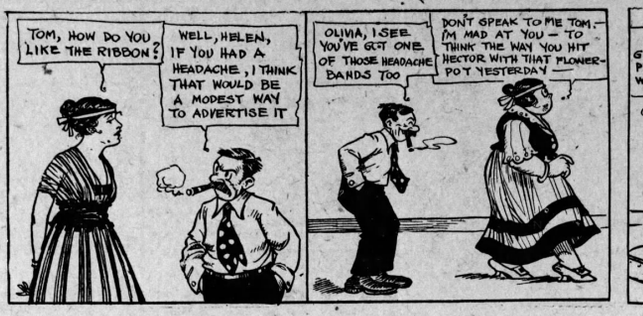

"What do you mean?" Martha, forgot herself and her cheeks reddened.

"Oh, Jad always said you'd be a stun- ner with good clothes, if you weren't so stiff. He said you reminded him of hollyhocks, but it was impossible for a fellow to talk to you, because you wouldn't talk. You'll come or I'll send him after you."

"You needn't send him. Don't you dare!" cried Martha, and betrayed her- self still further. "I thought that you and he—"

"Oh, my no," laughed Ethel. "There's a man in another town"—and Ethel's own face grew pink—"who'll be there. He likes me best in white. But," mis- chievously, "I'll certainly send Jad."

SACRED COLLEGE DEAN PASSES AWAY AT ROME

Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli Dies at the Age of Eighty-One

(By Associated Press.)

ROME, Aug. 19.—(Via Paris, 9 a. m.)—Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli, dean of the Sacred college, is dead at the age of eighty-one.

Cardinal Vannutelli was one of the most influential of those members of the Sacred college eligible to the papacy. He was one of the six cardinal bishops who take their title from the suburban sees of Rome. He was bishop of Porto, Santa Rufina and Ostia. He was created and proclaimed cardinal by Pope Leo XIII March 14, 1887.

The cardinal was born November 26, 1834, at Genazzano, in the diocese of Palastryna. His early education was obtained in the seminary of Genazzano and he received decrees in philosophy and theology in the Capranica college at Rome.

After teaching theology in the pontifical seminary he embarked upon a diplomatic career and was successively secretary of the papal nuncio in Bavaria, apostolic delegate to Ecuador and Peru and nuncio at Brussels and Vienna.

WILL MUSIC OF FUTURE RETURN TO SIMPLE FORMS?

Since the old Gregorian chants of the Middle Ages, the trend of musical composition, both vocal and instrumental, has been toward tremendous effects and generally, from the viewpoint of the lay mind, via the road of complexity. There is a good old law, "Whatever goes up must come down," and musical composition having arisen to the complicated heights of Wagner and Strauss, is today due to a descent to a more common level and simpler forms.

The first hint that this change is on the way can be noticed by reading that great barometer of public musical opinion, the talking machine companies. Its the business of these companies to record music that the public wants, and a close study of present day lists shows that the simpler forms of music are in demand.

The pulse of the public has been felt out with great success by the Columbia Graphophone company recently, and it is interesting to note that the first records of the great lyric tenor, Karl Jorn, is interesting to note that the first recartists, are taken from the simplest and some of the oldest folk songs known. The old German "Volkslied," Du, Du Liegst Mir Im Herzen, is of unknown date of origin, yet today is one of the most popular melodies in the homes of all countries. The fact that the first recordings of a great Wagnerian tenor should be chosen from this simple source, would seem to point to the fact that the trend of musical composition of the future will be toward simpler forms. "The Maid of the Rhine" and 'Rhine Song," also recorded by Karl Jorn, are other popular folk song melodies, and two of Schubert's happiest attempts, "Impatience" and "Wandering" complete the first recordings of this famous tenor for the Columbia company. FIELD DAY EXERCISES DEFERRED TO FRIDAY

Play Ground Children's Fete Spoiled by Rain on Wednesday Afternoon

The Field day of the city playgrounds will be held on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the exercises having been postponed Wednesday because of the rain.

Despite the weather, special cars carried several hundred children to Piedmont park Wednesday afternoon, but the rain was so bad on their arrival that the exercises had to be postponed.

Mrs. Florence Tibbets, supervisor of the playgrounds, announces that the same program arranged for Wednesday will be carried out on Friday afternoon. Mayor I. N. Ragsdale will be present then and will deliver the cups and prizes to the winning teams.

The public is invited to witness the exercises, in which Mrs. Tibbets expects 12,000 to 14,000 children to take part.

FRUIT SHIP MISSING; IN WAKE OF HURRICANE

Thirty-Five Passengers on Steamer From Honduras to New Orleans

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19.—The American steamer Marowijne, of the United Fruit company's line, overdue here from Belize, British Honduras, since Monday night, had not been reported early today, according to steamship officials.

The steamer has aboard thirty-five passengers and a large crew. Efforts still were being made to communicate with the vessel by wireless and the United Fruit company was attempting to communicate with its powerful radio station on Swan island, north of Honduras, in the hope that the station might have heard from her.

The radio station on Cape San Antonio, Cuba, which is the usual relay point from New Orleans, was damaged by the hurricane and wireless operators here have been unable to communicate with the several stations south of there. The Marowijne was suposed to have been in the Yucatan channel Saturday when the tropical hurricane reached the vicinity, and it is feared here the vessel might have been disabled and that it is drifting up the Mexican coast.

DR. BREWER WRITES HOME FROM AUSTRIA

"American fiction writers and newspaper corespondents are literally cleaning up over here. There is food for millions of romances, adventures, dramas and tragedies within the radius of the distance I travel every day in my hospital duties. So writes Dr. Walpole Brewer, former house physician at the Hotel Ansley, now stationed at Wien, Austria, to friends in Atlanta. He is attached to the American Red Cross in Austria.

"The hell that Sherman had in mind was a sort of side show in comparison with Europe's 'big top,'" he concludes, and adds, "The war will last Lord knows how long!"

Why Are They So Cruel to Animals?

By Edna K. Wooley

He prayeth well who loveth well,
Both man and bird and beast;
He prayeth best who loveth best
All things both great and small;
For the dear God who loveth me,
He made and loveth all.

I WISH that could be printed in big letters in every home and shop and office, in every public and private way. And then, perhaps people would stop and think a bit before visiting neglect or cruelty upon these helpless creatures in their charge.

"These are busy days" said an officer of the Humane society. "Everybody that goes away from home—almost—leaves a cat or dog behind and after the creature has become a neighborhood nuisance or is nearly starved to death we are notified by some neighbor to come and put it out of its misery. Or the cat is left locked in the house and we are supposed to do the burglar act and rescue it.

"There's another fashion that has increased this year. I don't know why. People who move out of a rented house lock up a mother cat and her kittens, leaving them to starve to death unless some accident releases them. I've had several such cases this year. It must be a new wrinkle to get even with the landlord.

"Not long ago I was called out to a little chicken farm. It had been left in the charge of the farmer's two girls when he had to go west on important business. The girls were so busy going out nights with their beaux, and reading novels during the day, that they neglected to attend to the chickens. The setting hens had no water and were dying on their nests. I gave those girls a good scare, believe me!"

Speaking of chickens—a good many people seem to think chickens have no feelings, judging by their treatment of the poor creatures. One city woman who keeps her eyes open, sent in this complaint recently:

"The manner in which chickens are handled is sickening. I saw one hen with a broken leg, thrown up on to a chicken box, and it lay there panting in agony. I saw a little girl carrying a rooster, dragging its head along the rough pavement. The child's mother said nothing to her. A woman carried a heavy goose suspended by one wing, for several blocks. I saw a man wringing a duck. It fluttered and he crushed it so viciously on to the scales that there was a spot of blood on the scales when he lifted the bird off. A woman in the market had bought a live chicken with a broken neck. She asked one of the market men to kill it for her. He finally succeeded, with a dull pocket-knife.

"I often see boxes of chickens standing in the broiling sun. I have seen boxes of chickens on a hot summer day, standing in the heat until the chickens' combs became pale and saliva ran from their mouths. I have never seen them given water to drink, and a chicken needs a great deal of water.

"People buy live chickens and crush them head downward into market baskets, then pile heavy packages on top of them. Sometimes they are bent and twisted to fit into a basket—they must suffer pitifully. Every time I go to the city market, or travel on the street cars on market days, I see examples of thoughtless cruelty toward these feathered helpless things."

A distinct influence of the navy is shown in the small cap of blue and black striped silk.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—No wonder that a majority of women are eager to know what is to be the last word in millinery for the winter. Will the verdict be given for the small hat, that ridiculous thing we see in the pictures and on some women, a hat perched on top of a smoothly coiffed head? Or will we be allowed to wear a reasonably large shape with a brim that shields the eyes, or at least has a crown that has pretension of dignity?

The Anglo-Saxon face is quite different from the small, delicately chiseled face of the French woman for whom these styles are invented. True, there have arisen among us an overwhelming number of slim little figures topped by flower-like faces that never grew before in this western garden of girls, one would say, off-hand, but they do not represent the mass.

The small hat needs so much beauty beneath it that only the few should have the vanity to essay it.

But if it is to be the most fashionable hat of the coming season, then we will see it on every side, and probably be astonished that it looks as well as it does, and again ask ourselves how the faces are made overnight to produce the flight effect with each succeeding fashion. It is puzzling strange, this fact. Could we all make ourselves over to suit the costume we desire if we had some secret knowledge that seems to be in the possession of the few?

All that has been said before, especially during the last few weeks whenever the subject of millinery comes up, but it is so important that it is not possible to avoid a similar discussion, for wherever women are foregathered the topic is pulled to pieces. It is the current conclusion of such arguments that women will look their worst this winter if this small hat is to be accepted by the majority.

When there appeared a summer suit of white linen trimmed with brass buttons and braid, called "the Churchill," one felt that the navy would soon be used in the fashions of the day. All winter we were inundated with fashions suggested by the army, and now the designers have turned to the other branch of the service, knowing that it offers many delightful suggestions for fashions. Of course, the marine cap was taken up first.

The sketch gives a good idea of how smart young girl looks in this cap as it has been turned out for her use. It is of dark blue silk striped with black and at the back is a careless bow of satin ribbon with short ends. That is all, but it is quite sufficient for style. It takes a certain kind of face to wear it; of that, beware. But if it is your style, then you have a novelty at hand for the early autumn.

Even with all its sauciness, it is not nearly as trying a shape as the one that has no width anywhere. This cap does give breadth across the top of the head and that fact alone keeps it from being impossible for any but the chosen few who are able to wear any piece of millinery that is invented. With a veil it is admirable for the motor, and motoring, like going to Europe, is by no means restricted to the rich.

A flat contour is demanded by any kind of hat today, because the inside of the crown is so small, yet the women everywhere seemed to have conquered the difficulties of doing the hair in this manner. The majority look very well, indeed, without pugs, pompadour, or Marcel wave.

With the new marine cap, it would not be possible to adjust any of those curves and bulges in the coiffure that once were the delight of the many, whether they were bought for twenty cents or grew on the scalp.

AUGUST PRESERVES

PEAR MARMALADE.—Use large yellow pears which are thoroughly ripe. Peel and core ten pounds of the fruit, put it in a porcelain kettle with a pint of water, letting it cook slowly until reduced to a pulp. Then add one-half pound of sugar to every pound of the fruit, and stir over the fire until the mixture is thick and smooth. Put the fruit in wide bowls, allow it to cool, and put it in small glasses; seal and set in a cool, dry place.

FRUIT IN BRANDY.—Peeled peaches, apricots and plums may be used for this delectable dainty. Allow one pound of sugar to every two pounds of the fruit, and begin by clarifying it; when the syrup boils gently lay in the fruit, pricking the plums, but only leave it in the kettle long enough to be softened a little. Take great care that the fruit does not actually cook. When slightly softened, take it out and put it in a sieve to drain. Set the fruit to cool; then boil the syrup until it is thick, put with it an equal quantity of raw brandy and pour it over the fruit, which should now be in the jars.

PLUM JELLY.—Put ripe plums in a colander and pour boiling water over them, then put the fruit in a preserving kettle with barely enough water to cover, and boil until the plums are softened and the juice is plentiful. Strain off the juice and let it on to boil. Measure out a pound of sugar to every pint of the juice, and place it in shallow pans in the oven to heat until the juice has boiled for twenty minutes. Add the sugar then, stirring it in until dissolved and removing all scum as it rises, and pour into glasses boiled in hot water to prevent their breaking when the scalding fluid is poured in. A delicious jelly from wild grapes may be made in the same way, but, remember, if the jelly bag is squeezed the result will be jam and not clear jelly. When the natural dripping seems about over, squeeze out all the pulp that will come through the mesh of the bag and use it for jam.

Globe-Trotting Americans

(Louise Closser Hale in Harper's Magazine.)

"The American is an explorer from the cradle to the grave. What they appear to derive from their journeyings is a deep satisfaction with the home to which they return. Still, they can be generous, one traveler, who was known as No. 22 in her European party, summed it all up as she knitted a pink pocket on to a white sweater. 'I went about everywhere in Europe—saw everything—and I've come to the conclusion that there are ahead of me in just five things'—we hung upon her words—'flowers and fruit,' she completed.

Today's Family Affairs

By Mary Lee

TO MRS. R. E.:—I am afraid you are going to have quite a little trouble in keeping your Panama hat immaculate, for the only thing you can do is to keep on using the powder the man cleaned it with. This will probably be either Fuller's earth or French chalk. As you say it is brown in places it is possible the powder may not be sufficient to disguise these spots, so a suggestion is to remove all the white, using peroxide, and so get the hat all one tint. The peroxide might possibly bleach the hat so that a thick coat of French chalk put on and allowed to remain a day, then brushed off, would leave the hat in good shape.

Supposing the powder will not answer, I should feel inclined to use the liquid that comes for doing over white shoes, getting a good quality. I believe it would be effective, but, of course, I should not advise using it upon an expensive hat. If you decide to use the French chalk, you might brush the hat over with the beaten white of an egg, after removing all the white. This makes a kind of size which holds the powder, also prevents soil from getting into the hat.

The summer silks in white, plain colors, prints and awning stripes may look like new as long as they last if correctly laundered. With the new silks has come a new method of laundering. Drink, a soap jelly is made by dissolving hard white soap in four times its bulk of water. To this add one ounce of ammonia, the white of an egg beaten stiff and a wine glassful of methylated spirits or gin. A tablespoonful to a cupful of this mixture is put into warm water (depending upon the size of the garment to be washed) with the article to be cleansed, which is squeezed through the hands until clean, then rinsed in lukewarm water and hung up without much wringing. The ammonia cleans and also preserves the color, the egg silkily stiffens and the spirit preserves the gloss of the silk, hence the fabric is like new again.

To Mrs. E.—Whipped potato can be made from cold potatoes either mashed or whole. If the latter, mash and put into a double boiler with one tablespoonful of butter and four tablespoonfuls of milk to two cups of potato. Leave the lid off to let the steam arise. Leave for about ten minutes. Then beat with a fork until light and fluffy.

Pears to be preserved in molasses must be of the hard variety. Cut the blossom end but do not remove the stem. Peel, drop in cold water and put on the fire. Heat gradually and stew until tender. Remove the pears from the liquid and place in a dish where they can be kept warm. To each pint of the liquid add a pint of molasses. Return to the fire, add a bit of ginger and boil for half an hour, removing the scum as it arises. Put in the pears and cook twenty minutes. Pack in jars and seal hot.

A Textbook Overplayed Lee

(San Francisco Chronicle.)

SACRAMENTO.—The state board of education recently made "Mace's Beginner's History of the United States" the standard textbook for the fifth grade, in which the study of history begins.

At the end of the book, the board found seven pages devoted to "The Man Who Led the Confederate Armies, Robert E. Lee." That appeared satisfactory, but at the end of those seven pages was found the caption: "Other Heroes of the Civil War." Under this was classed Ulysses S. Grant, among others, with one page.

The state board of education has demanded that Grant be accorded at least as much space and as much prominence as Lee.

PETER RABBIT was hopping and skipping on his way to the Old Orchard to call on his old friend, Johnny Chuck. Peter was feeling in the very best of spirits and every once in a while, just by way of showing how good he did feel, he would jump up in the air as high as he could and kick his heels together. Now Peter is sometimes a little careless and does not always look to see where he is going, and this is how it happened that after one of those big jumps he landed on the tail of little Mr. Garter Snake.

Very fortunately for little Mr. Garter Snake was only the tip of his tail that Peter landed on, but even then it wasn't at all pleasant to have such a thing happen. Little Mr. Garter Snake pulled his tail out from under Peter's feet and coiled himself up. Then he darted out his tongue at Peter in that impudent way of his and hissed angrily.

"Why don't you look to see what you are doing?" he hissed.

Peter looked quite as sorry as he felt. "I beg your pardon," said he very humbly. "I'm so sorry. I didn't mean to jump on you. Truly I didn't. I just didn't see your tail at all. Won't you forgive me, Mr. Garter Snake?"

Anger still darted from the eyes of Mr. Garter Snake, those eyes which never wink because they have no lids, and he still hissed angrily.

"It was very stupid of you, Peter Rabbit. It's a pity if people can't go about their business without being stepped on by clumsy fellows like you!" he snapped.

"It is so," declared Peter. "I hope you'll excuse me this time and I promise you it shall not happen again. I think you must have left your tail out in the path without knowing it. I should think it would be hard work to know where your tail is all the time; it is so far behind you. Isn't it?"

Little Mr. Garter Snake had to smile in spite of himself. The idea that he shouldn't know where all of him was all the time struck him as funny. It was just like Peter to make a remark like that.

"Why don't you look to see what you are doing?" he hissed.

"I don't have to sit on my tail to know where it is as you do," he declared in a somewhat milder tone.

Peter chuckled. "Sitting on it is better than having it stepped on, I guess," said he, "and I'll remember that the next time I get envying somebody with a longer tail. But truly, Mr. Garter Snake, I am sorry I stepped on yours, and I hope you will excuse me."

"I will on one condition," replied Mr. Garter Snake, a sparkle which was not anger, coming into his eyes.

"What is that?" demanded Peter.

"That you'll let me join the Quaddies. Will you?" returned little Mr. Garter Snake.

Peter was so surprised that he didn't know what to say. He just sat and stared stupidly at little Mr. Garter Snake. He hadn't been so surprised since Sammy Jay had asked to join the band. The truth is Peter didn't see how Mr. Garter Snake could be a member, but he didn't like to tell him so.

(Flynn and McLaughlin.)

"Haven't you got a brother who's a minister?"

"He was a minister, but he went into the hat business."

"Why did he leave the church?"

"For seven reasons."

"What are they?"

"A wife and six children."

"Did you know that today is my birthday?"

"Let me congratulate you."

"How old do you think I am?"

"I don't know, but you don't look it."

"The other day I had my fortune told by a palmist."

"Girls make me tired. They are always going to get their hands read."

"Yes, and men are always going into saloons to get their noses red."

"I can't get angry with you. You're a queen."

"Then lend me a ten spot."

"Here you are, but I'm surprised that you take it."

"If you understood anything about cards you'd know that the queen always takes a ten spot."

EVEN the worm will turn they say, and hungry, underpaid stevedores are less patient than the earthgrubbing insect. There were murmurs at Snyder's orders and open rebellion at his language. Just how it started nobody seemed to know; just who began it doesn't matter. Suffice to say that leaderless as the men were, impelled by a common instinct, they had suddenly rushed the rough-tongued foreman and had thrown him off the dock into the water. Then had come the march to the office; the demand for better pay, the clanging of the gate, the call for the police—and the strike.

Of all this not a word had reached Laura. Of all this not a whisper, not a suggestion had found its way behind the beautiful ivy-covered stone wall that surrounded the Powers estate. Not a syllable had been permitted to disturb the peace and serenity of the millionaire's palatial residence, and probably never would have, if the men, at an open air meeting on the afternoon of Laura's party, had not appointed Tim Shand the head of a committee to place their grievances before the millionaire.

"We can never get to him at his office. We will see him at his home," Tim had shouted.

And so it happened as we have seen, that the rough coated men, with the stubble of a week's growth of beard on their chins, had waved the servants to one side, and had elbowed their way among the guests at Laura Powers' colonial party.

At last Tim and the angry Powers came face to face.

For a moment the two men glared at each other. And then Shand, with the self-command and eloquence that had made him a leader among the workmen, quickly made his plea for justice.

"We come to you, Mr. Powers, because we realize that you do not know what the men have suffered. We know that if you had realized the awful tyranny of your underlings, conditions would have been improved long ago. We ask you to take the men back under proper working conditions. And (this firmly) we ask the removal of Snyder. Not for ourselves alone, but for our wives and children we appear. They are starving."

"Let them starve," was Powers' answer.

And while the two men were still staring at each other, Travis at the head of a retinue of servants rushed up, and roughly hustled the starving stevedores from the grounds. They had presented their plea. It had been refused and they made no resistance. They had not come looking for trouble.

Laura was a surprised and startled witness to this stirring scene. She had never realized before that there was such a thing as starvation. Only today at luncheon she had ordered an entire roast destroyed because it had not been cooked to suit her. Probably in the course of a year, she had ordered enough food thrown away to feed several of the starving families of her father's striking workmen.

A great compassion was born within her. Her features showed the dawn of

"Starving."

Those who knew Laura best saw by the light of her eye and the determined angle at which she held her head, that a new resolution had taken root in her wilful thoughts. She appeared restless and anxious—appeared like a person who had conceived a great project and only waited a suitable opportunity to put it into operation.

CHAPTER III.

Mina Hurd was a frail and delicate woman of twenty-five. A constant battle with poverty had left its marks. Far into each night she toiled with needle in a desperate endeavor to eke out the little family's slender income.

Bent over some hard sewing, urging her weary fingers to unceasing endeavors to add to the slowly increasing pile of finished garments beside her, she hardly deigned to raise her eyes from her work, when a commotion at the unpainted front door of the shabby cottage warned her that she was having visitors at an unusual time.

"Oh look, mama, it's papa."

Pretty Betty Hurd, six years old, dropped her pitifully dilapidated doll and rushed toward the front door, only to fall back with an anguished wail at the horrible sight that met her eyes.

Two laborers appeared at the doorway supporting the half unconscious Hurd between them. His head was covered with blood. His eyes were glassy, his feet shuffled and seemed too heavy for him to lift.

"Your husband's been hurt, ma'am," said one of the men, as guided by Mina, they half dragged, half carried the injured man to the scantily furnished bedroom and propped their stricken comrade in the shabby bed.

The happenings of the next few hours were as a dream to Mina. She had a hazy recollection that one of the men had called the kindly-faced and gentle Dr. Gray. She vaguely remembered having fed something to little Mina. She dimly sensed having helped Dr. Gray and one of the laborers dress her husband's wound. But from out the chaotic jumble of her tangled memory, one thing stood bold and clear. It was the verdict of the doctor, spoken in gentle, kindly tones.

"Your husband has a severe injury to the skull. He cannot work for many weeks."

But Mina Hurd was not the only one to whom these words had sent their horrible portent. Through the throbbing of Hurd's battered temples, through the half paralyzed numbness of his brain, they penetrated to his subconscious understanding, and made him realize the awfulness of the poverty they foretold.

Followed days and weeks of desperate struggle for Mina, while Hurd slowly recovered his strength. Sitting impotent in his chair, the injured stevedore watched his frail and faithful wife grow frailer with each succeeding day. Each stitch of her needle was a separate anguish to him. Each time the bit of sharpened steel entered the cloth it was as if it penetrated his soul. Small wonder he resolved, while sitting there, that Jake Snyder and his millionaire employer would pay—pay dearly for this tragedy of tyranny and toil in which he and his little family were playing the leading roles.

Harnessed With an Ox!

His mind gone and in abject terror of his masters, he does their bidding as a beast of burden.

But sometimes when the lash sings 'round his ears, the clouds drift away.

As in a dream he lives again the terror of the Red Death.

Then out of the forgotten past come shadowy visions, half seen faces and the formless syllables of names, mere fragments of once loved beings. Two thoughts only are coherent:

"Who Can Save Annette?" and—
"Neal Must Find the Way!"

THE HEART

How It Acts In Every Day Life

The human heart, in a healthy man weighs but eleven ounces. It beats from long before birth until death, in an average lifetime, about seven million times, allowing seventy beats to the minute. Every twenty-four hours this slight organ performs labor equivalent to lifting a ton of material eighty feet into the air. If the blood becomes poor, and filled with poisons from diseased kidneys, the heart is not only starved, but poisoned as well. It soon becomes exhausted and unable to meet any extraordinary demand which may be made upon it. "Supply pure blood; get the kidneys to working; tone up the alimentary canal. Give the heart the food it needs and it will continue to work till the natural end of life.

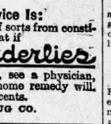

Bumpass, Va.—"Before I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicines I suffered with pain in my shoulders, head and back, and had palpitation of the heart. I could hardly get up. Was in bed nearly all the time. I took Dr. Pierce's Medical Discovery and Favorite Prescription. I soon began to feel much better and could visit around in the neighborhood. I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's remedies. Would advise anyone thus afflicted to use 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.' I also took the 'Pleasant Pellets' with good results.

Interesting Weddings

Hall-Dunwody

A beautiful event of Wednesday evening was the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Dunwody and Mr. William D. Hall, which was solemnized at "The Nest," the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Cornelia Dunwody, in Kirkwood. Palms, ferns and many lovely Paul Neyron roses formed the decorations of the home and in the drawing room was an improvised altar of handsome palms. Pale pink candles in quaint sconces threw a lovely radiance over the scene.

The wedding party included the bride's sister, Mrs. Wright Jackson, of Bainbridge, matron of hoor; Miss Cornelia Dunwody, maid of honor, and Miss Annie Kate Green, Miss Roberta Robson and Miss Jean Robson, bridesmaids. The dainty little flower girls were Elizabeth Dunwody and Georgia Mary Viley. Mr. Arthur Reid was best man.

The matron of honor was gowned in white chiffon embroidered with a tracery of silver threads and her flowers were pink roses. The maid of honor and the bridesmaids were dainty gowns of taffeta and lace and carried baskets of pink roses, while the little flower girls were Bride's roses and white sashes of pink satin and carried flower baskets.

Rev. Carl Barth, pastor of the Kirkwood Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony.

The bride entered with her brother, Mr. Robert Dunwody, of New Orleans, and was beautiful in her wedding gown of lustrous white satin trimmed with pearls, her tulle veil was adjusted to her soft hair with a spray of orange blossoms and fell in graceful folds to the edge of the train and her flowers were bride's roses showered with lilies of the valley.

A beautiful feature of the evening was the wedding march played by the bride's uncle, Mr. Marion Dunwody, of Liberty, Mo.

An informal reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. Cornelia Dunwody, the mother of the bride, received her guests wearing a handsome gown of black crepe with underdress of chantilly lace and her flowers were orchids and lilies of the valley. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hall left for a wedding trip through the east and upon their return will be at home at the residence of the groom's parents.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Davis Fitzgerald, of Chester, S.C.; Miss Hall, of West Point; Mr. and Mrs. William Hutchinson, of Macon; Mr. and Mrs. Marion Dunwody, of Liberty, Mo.; and Mr. and Mrs. Robson Dunwody, of New Orleans.

One Big Fact Not Advertised is the 2½ grains of a harmful drug in the average cup of coffee.

Coffee roasters know that there is caffeine, a subtle, poisonous drug in coffee. But they dodge the issue and talk about flavour. Proof lies in the fact that some coffee concerns have tried, without much success, to rid coffee of its caffeine.
Daily blows of this coffee-drug finally result for most people, in nervousness, headache, heart flutter or some other form of caffeine poisoning.
You may not think coffee hurts you, but to be sure, quit coffee ten days and use the pure food-drink—
POSTUM
It is made of wheat and a bit of wholesome molasses. The tasty, Java-like flavour makes the change easy as well as beneficial—and there's no drug or other harmful element in Postum.
There are two forms of Postum: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be boiled—15c and 25c pkgs. Instant Postum—the soluble form—is made in the cup with hot water, instantly—30c and 50c tins. The cost per cup is about the same for both kinds.

NORTH GEORGIA COUNTIES ARE BANDED TOGETHER

Will Co-operate Looking Toward Progress and Prosperity of Section

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 19.—An organization of the thirteen counties of the Seventh congressional district—Northwest Georgia, has come into existence, its one aim, the subordination of community jealousies and working for a spirit of mutual cooperation looking to the progress and prosperity of this section, was launched at a meeting of the Dalton automobile club, following a talk along this line made by Wright Willingham, of Rome.

Work will be expended, and the matter will take definite shape at an early date, for into every section of the district, the message will be carried.

Broad in its scope, the plan is intended for the upbuild of both cities and rural sections of the district, by the building of a network of good highways, the promoting of a spirit of sociability among the people of the various counties, and the instruction of the people up to a realization of the superior advantages of this section; the encouragement of better government for the cities and towns, and the introduction of modern farming methods.

An unselfish co-operation on the part of all the people, with the advancement of the entire district, rather than any one section, in view, were the main features of Mr. Willingham's talk, and Dalton people fell heartily in with the movement.

As a meeting of the Rome Rotary club Wednesday, at which a number of Dalton business men will be guests, the matter will be discussed more fully.

DOUGHERTY TAX RETURNS SHOW GAIN OF $15,741

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ALBANY, Ga., Aug. 19.—Dougherty county's tax returns show an increase this year over last of $15,741. The total property valuation in the county, as shown in the tax digest just completed by Tax Receiver R. L. Barnes, is $8,362,108. Last year it was $8,346,367. In view of the fact that many counties this year are showing decreases instead of gains, Dougherty county's showing is considered a good one.

Of the gain shown, about $5,000 is in the returns of white property owners and nearly $11,000 in the negro returns. The total number of acres of land returned is 202,640, at a valuation of $1,427,940. The value of city realty returned is $3,439,709. The total value of realty in city and county is $4,867,649.

Enthusiasm vs. Bumps

(Des Moines Register.)

The Kansas City Star hits the nail on the head when it says good roads are not built by good roads enthusiasm, unless the sentiment is crystallized into action.

Iowa has three or four cross-state motor car highways which have been paved with enthusiasm, and dragged with less enthusiasm, for several years, but traffic still sticks in the mud or bumps over the ruts, according to the state of the weather.

It is time for Iowa to crystallize its enthusiasm into action.

As to the Liberty Bell

(Nashville Southern Lumberman.)

The liberty bell would probably not go traveling all over the country at its age unless it was cracked.

Sluggish Liver Causes Trouble

If you feel dull and stupid, languid and weak, a Foley Cathartic Tablet will help you. Stout persons are particularly grateful for the light and free feeling they bring. Sold everywhere.—(Advt.)

Market in New York Closed 3 Points Up to 2 Points Off From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 4 or 5 points today in response to disappointing Liverpool cables. There appeared to be some scattered realizing or liquidation by yesterday's buyers, but offerings were pretty well taken and the market was quiet but about steady after the opening with traders waiting for more definite reports from the southwest.

Private reports from the southwest are very conflicting as to the probable effects of the storm, some emphasizing the damage to open cotton, while others predicted beneficial results from the breaking of the drouth, and trading here remained very quiet during the morning. Prices ruled steady, however, with active months holding at a net decline of some 3 or 4 points.

The market sold up rather sharply early in the afternoon on New Orleans buying and local covering with active months working 3 to 4 points net higher, but the report that the Adriatic had been torpedoed was followed by a quick break to about the low point of the morning. Rallies to within 2 or 3 points of last night's closing figures followed on covering, but the tone was rather nervous during the middle of the afternoon.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19.—Cotton was under selling pressure in the early trading today as the result of poor cables and bearish crop talk, based on recent rains. Half an hour after the opening prices were 8 points under yesterday's close.

Alarming reports of crop damage came in from Texas but the market was held down by the hourly expectation of the declaration making cotton contraband of war. Toward noon prices were at a net decline of 9 points.

Nervous shorts started covering after the noon hour and their buying had quick effect on the market. In the trading up to 1:30 prices were put 3 to 5 points over yesterday's close.

STOCKS

Crucible Steel, Allis-Chalmers, Steel Foundry, Beet Sugar and Texas Co. Off

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Irregular price changes attended today's initial dealings. Gains and losses were almost equally divided but only in a few instances were the variations more than fractional. Bethlehem Steel lost a full point and Canadian Pacific was heavy following London's lower level. Texas company fell over 2 points. Later some of the war shares, notably New York Air Brake, American Steel Foundries, Crucible Steel and American Can advanced 1 to 3 points, before moderate advances in other specialties.

United States Steel opened with a sale of 3,500 shares unchanged from yesterday's close.

War shares became increasingly active and strong in the early afternoon but the entire list broke sharply on news of the sinking of the steamship Arabic. Steel was again offered in enormous quantities declining to below 75 with losses of 1 to 2 points in other standard stocks.

Further heavy selling occurred in the last hour when leading stocks and most specialties made the lowest prices of the day.

The closing was heavy.

GOSSIP

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Picayune says: One of the first effects of the indicated damage by the great tropical hurricane to the crop in Texas was the firming up of the spot markets. The Texas markets were, of course, not heard from except Dallas, but the other markets outside of the state realizing that deliveries of Texas cotton will be delayed were firmer and in some instances higher. The New Orleans market was called firm, although quotations were unchanged. The latest information would seem to make it practically certain that cotton will be declared contraband in the near future, but whether exports of cotton will be affected as much as some seem to think is problematical. Washington advices indicate that England has worked out a plan for supporting the cotton market by timely purchases. It is known that American mills have increased their takings and will no doubt continue to increase them, hence it is not unlikely that Lancashire spinners will endeavor to ensure their ull share of the raw material by advance purchases. For the first time practically on record the weekly government weather report was without information from Texas. This of itself is indicative of the wide area covered by the tropical hurricane. Some days must elapse before any comprehensive idea of the damage by the crop in Texas by the storm can be secured. Ordinarily storm damage is exaggerated, but in this particular case the meteorological data indicates that the storm has maintained its virulence even after it has penetrated well inland. As the date for the publication of the next bureau condition report had been fixed for August 31, which is a legal holiday in this state, being election day for delegates to the constitutional convention, the local exchange yesterday made an effort to have the date for the publication of the report deferred to September 1. The agricultural department, however, declined to make the desired change. The two private crop authorities that have so far published semimonthly reports on condition have averaged a 6 point deterioration. Last year the crop improved 1.6 points during August. A bullish bureau report August 31 is, therefore, looked for.

E. H. Hutton & Co. say: Cables are slightly easier today. We are due to open 3 to 4 points lower. The tropical storm was still central over the north central portion of eastern Texas last night. The rains continued, but the winds have subsided. Showers were general in the southern states and Oklahoma and will continue today and Friday in Tennessee, the south Atlantic and gulf states. Newspaper advices say that the storm has done considerable damage to cotton, but just how much is impossible to say. We still favor purchases on all recessions.

Washington advices state that Representative Lever and other members of the congress from the cotton states have called on the president within the past few days and have been given his assurance that a prompt protest will be sent to Great Britain and the other allies declaring cotton contraband.

Map unfavorable, shows cloudy entire belt, heavy rains north Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, north Louisiana, Tennessee, Atlantics.

Storm now seems over southern Arkansas. Fort Worth had 8, and Dallas 7 inches in two days, 2 to 4 inches rain in Arkansas and east Atlantics. Details of Texas damage not received yet.

Weather map shows very unfavorable indications. Storm working over north Louisiana, Arkansas, then into Mississippi. Will cause torrential rains for several days.

11 a. m. bids in New York were as follows: October, 9.36; January, 9.77; March, 9.99; September, 9.18.

Detailed government records show very heavy damaging rains north Louisiana, north Alabama, north Georgia, north Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee. No reports by government on Texas.

San Antonio wires: A 42-mile gale has blown all open cotton on the ground and rain beat it down in the mud. Expect more reports of this kind when fields are examined.

Houston Post of yesterday says: "Damage to property and severe injury to cotton crop is reported from inland towns. In this section the crop is practically wiped out and this is the case at Hallettsville, Bastrop and Sealy. Heavy cotton crop loss reported at Brazos, Caldwell, Coleman, Flatonia, Lockhart, Yoakum, Gonzales and Richmond.

Forecast:

Kentucky and Tennessee: Rain tonight and probably Friday.

Georgia: Showers tonight and Friday; gentle to moderate northeast to east winds.

Florida: Unsettled tonight and Friday; probably showers except generally fair in southern portion; gentle to moderate shifting winds, mostly south, over northwest portion.

Alabama and Mississippi: Showers tonight and Friday; moderate south winds.

Virginia: Fair tonight and Friday, except probably showers in southwest portion; gentle to moderate north and northeast winds.

Louisiana: Tonight and Friday rains; moderate to brisk southerly winds on the coast.

Arkansas: Tonight and Friday rain.

Oklahoma: Tonight rain; Friday cloudy; rain in eastern portion.

East Tevas: Tonight partly cloudy; rain in northern portion; Friday partly cloudy; probably rain in northeast portion; light to moderate southerly to westerly winds on the coast.

West Texas: Tonight and Friday partly cloudy.

STOCK GOSSIP

Dow, Jones' summary: Bank of England rate unchanged at 5 per cent. Mercantile Marine minority stockholders make strong protest reorganization plan calling for assessment. British life insurance companies paid out $15,000,000 since war began on army and navy killed. Reic ank gold reserve $601,000,000 against $377,000,000 a year ago. San Francisco banks receive $2,000,000 in gold sovereigns from Australia. Paul S. Reinch, United StaStes minister to China, outlines to President Wilson possibilities for American money in the Far East. Executive board International Association of Machinists repudiates plan for general strike in munition plants throughout the United States. British press places at $500,000,000 the amount of gold the Allies will ship to the United States. Proclamation declaring cotton contraband expected to be issued today. Indian war loan of $15,000,000 largely oversubscribed. Average of 12 industrials 99.26, up .62; 20 railways 94.10, off .14.

E. F. Hutton & Co. say: The United States today controls the markets of the world. They have everything to sell with no competition. That is what our market is based on. We will probably receive in the next six months $250,000,000 to $500,000,000 in gold. Our steel plants are running to their full capacity; general business, as shown by the clearings of the country, has started up. We will have reactions and fluctuations, which formerly would have frightened people, but today they are accustomed to them. So far the railroads have not sympathized in the boom. The opportunity to make money in them has not been equal to that in the industrials stocks, but the time is very near when such opportunities will arise. We cannot have this big business without good railroad earnings. Certain industrial stocks have not come forward yet, such as Hide and Leather preferred, Central Leather and others, but each of these will have its turn. We are still told to buy Inspiration Copper for much higher prices. The metal shows indication of reviving interest and we are told is likely to sell up around 20 cents again.

GRAIN GOSSIP

King, Farnum & Co. say: Weather seems to promise better things and that is only thing necessary to bring about movement of sufficient volume to lower the high cash premiums and give December and May a downward tendency. Corn and oats offer buying places on breaks.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co. say: With fair weather the wheat movement should be large shortly, but think it will meet with excellent demand. Corn—A trading proposition. Advise keeping away from short side of September oats.

Grain belt forecast: Some rain for Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota, South Dakota, eastern Nebraska and Kansas.

Liverpool spot cables: Wheat unchanged; corn, unchanged to ½ higher; oats, ¼ up.

Think wheat is headed for considerably lower prices. Best posted people on our spring wheat and condition of crop say no estimates yet; those made are high enough. We advise sales. —Dennis.

Weather Conditions

Forecast till 7 p. m. Friday.

Atlanta and vicinity: Showers tonight and Friday.

Georgia and Alabama: Showers tonight and Friday.

The severe tropical storm has decreased in force and remains central over northern Texas. As usually happens, the disturbance has resolved itself into a general rain area and unusually heavy rains are reported in the southwest. Fort Smith reported 3.92 inches, Little Rock 2.88, Dallas 2.74, Memphis 2.72, and eight other stations over an inch in the past twenty-four hours. General rains have fallen over the cotton belt.

Fair weather prevails over the entire northern and western sections of the United States.

Temperatures are not very low in any section and remain moderate for the season in the south. The 7 a. m. isothermal line of 80 degrees extends along the immediate gulf coast.

Conditions remain favorable for showers at Atlanta and vicinity.

GRAIN

Wheat Closed 5-8 to 1 1-4 Cents Down—Corn, Pork, Lard and Sides Firm

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Auspicious harvest conditions for the spring crop turned the wheat market today sharply down grade. The weather in the Dakotas and Minnesota was reported to be ideal, with every day adding to the likelihood of a big final yield. Predictions of a further decrease in the amount of wheat on ocean passage failed to be of much help to the bulls. Opening prices, which ranged from ¼ to 1c lower with September at 105¼ to 105¾ and December at 104¾ to 105 were followed by a moderate additional setback all around.

Afterwards, signs of a fair amount of export buying rallied the wheat market a little, but the sinking of the steamer Arabic brought about a fresh downturn in prices. The close was unsettled at ⅝@1¼c net decline, with September at $1.05⅝ and December at $1.04⅝.

Corn eased off with wheat. Trade was rather small. After opening unchanged to ¼@⅜c lower with September at 75 to 75⅜, and December at 63¾ to 63⅞c, the market underwent something of a general decline.

Need of warmer temperatures counted later in giving the corn market strength. The close was firm at the same as last night to ⅝@¾c higher, with September 75⅞@76c and December, 64⅛c.

Improved weather carried down oats. Buying on resting orders, though, gradually checked the fall.

Provisions tended lower, influenced by the weakness of hogs and grain. The chief pressure to sell was on ribs.

Later, however, the market advanced to a material extent. Covering by shorts was chiefly responsible for the rally.

DePalma Rules Favorite in Big Motor Classic

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Entries for the annual Elgin road races, to be staged Friday and Saturday, continue to string into the headquarters of the Kane County race meet officials, and, according to those behind the big annual contest, the 1915 races will surpass any ever held over the course.

With the exception of Dario Resta, every prominent driver has already entered. Although Resta has steadfastly refused to enter because of his wife's protest, automobile club officials are of the opinion that when the starting gun is fired the Italian will be in the field of drivers.

Ralph de Palma, winner of both events at Elgin last year and of the money at Indianapolis this year, has entered and the Italian will pilot E. C. Paterson's big Mercedes again. De Palma recently finished second at Des Moines in the Stutz car used by Howdy Wilcox in the Chicago speedway derby, and as the car is his personal property, De Palma undoubtedly will select some near-champion driver to pilot the white flyer.

ITALIAN IS FAVORITE.

De Palma is the favorite in the Elgin races, and unless something goes wrong with his machine the smiling Italian should win. Ralph's personal knowledge of every foot of the Elgin course should serve him well. Although he is considered one of the most careful drivers in the business, admirers of the veteran driver expect to see him win handily both on Friday and Saturday.

Ralph Mulford, the smiling pilot who raced out De Palma at Des Moines last Saturday, must be considered. While De Palma's followers concede Mulford a chance in the event of a breakdown for their favorite, the winner of the Des Moines contest is not expected to show the same class on the dirt track that was displayed at the Iowa capital.

At least once every season the motor-racing enthusiasts are treated to a complete surprise in results and there is just that chance that a dark horse will win at Elgin. There is Caleb Bragg, who must be conceded a chance no matter what the surrounding conditions may be. There is W. W. Brown to contend with. Earl Cooper, champion road racer of 1914, is on the list of entrants, and Cooper, next to De Palma, must be considered in the betting. As a courageous driver who will always take a chance, Cooper's presence in the race-tion and undoubtedly the Californian will be right up among the winners on both days at Elgin.

COURSE IN SHAPE.

The Elgin course has been put in the best possible condition. The turns have been widened and made safer, and promoters of the two-day racing card expect to see a world's record established for a road event. Practically all of the drivers entered at Elgin expect to participate at Minneapolis and also over the new New York course. The line of finish in the Elgin events means a great deal to every driver entered.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

With an entry list of an even forty for to Wednesday night, and good prospects of quite a few more registering for their participation before Saturday night, all conditions look toward the largest swimming meet yet held at the Young Men's Christian association. The events are all short and snappy, and the men are enthusiastic over the program, which is as follows: Plunge, twenty-yard swim, plain and fancy diving, eighty-yard swim and obstacle race. The object of this last-named event will be to swim around, through and over, under, etc., as many obstacles as may be put in their path.

The Atkinson-Buckle game in the volley ball league was the chief drawing card for one of the largest group of spectators which has as yet assembled to watch these games. Buckle's team came out with the big end of the score of 26 to 19, his success being largely due to the splendid teamwork displayed by the game and to the individual serving of Greenberg. Buckle's team is the first to hold an undisputed hold on first place.

The Hill-Morrison game started out very evenly, at the end of the first half the score standing 13 to 14. In the second half, partly due to the retirement of Phil Ammons because of a sprained ankle, Morrison's men forged steadily ahead, and the final count was 32 to 19 in favor of Morrison.

Waters lost to Ball in the game between the two, and thereby weakened his chances for the pennant. Ball's men played a very consistent game throughout, the final score being 34 to 22. The individual playing of Harry Goodman was the feature of the game.

Boykin was ahead of Smith at the end of the first half of their game, but the Smithites rallied considerably in the second half, left the Boykiners way behind with a final score of 37 to 20.

Pass Book Found

Secretary Newt Ethridge, of the local baseball club announces that a lady's season pass book was found in the grandstand at Ponce de Leon after Friday's game last week. This book has no name to indicate the owner. It is being held by the association, and will be delivered to the owner on application.

The Sportlight

BY GRANTLAND RICE

The pennant aspects of the present National league race have befogged even the dope of the umpires. We were talking over a few details of this famous flag hurly-burly with one of the leading arbitrators of the game, who has operated among the zig-zag fortunes of the different clubs and has had unusual opportunity to make observations. His comment outlined the situation thoroughly.

"I have seen a number of pennant races in my day," said this arbiter, "but nothing like the present one. I change my mind as to the October winner about four times a week. In one series I will be certain that Pittsburg will land the prize. They will furnish every mark of champions. In the next series against a weaker club the Pirates will look like tail-enders. The same dope is true of all the others. The Braves, Phillies and Dodgers will look almost unbeatable for three or four games, and then will cut in with a series of class X baseball. In one series one of these contenders will look strong in the box, at bat and in the field. In the next the pitching will be bad, the batting weak and the fielding raced. I've never seen anything even approaching these shifts from good to bad form and back again."

LACK OF CONSISTENCY.

"The lack of consistency this season," he continued, "has been beyond any past turn of the game. Only four clubs have shown any consistent striking strength—and these four for only short distances. The Phillies played grand baseball for the first three weeks of the race. They have barely broken even since. The Cubs had one drive for three weeks that made them look formidable. They have never been anywhere since. The Dodgers had the longest stretch of all when they won twenty-one out of twenty-six games—playing pennant baseball for a full month before they slipped. And the Braves had their turn in July, when at one stage they won something like fourteen out of sixteen games. But outside of these few instances no club has been able to hit off any consistent pace and hold it."

PICKING THE WINNER.

When we put up the proposition of attempting to pick the winner the umpire balked.

"There are too many 'ifs' in the way," he said. "In spite of Pittsburg's bad showing against the Reds, if she can put away a fair record on this eastern trip I believe she has a fine chance with those twenty-three home games through September; for with Mamaux, Harmon, Adams and McQuillen Clarke has a fine pitching staff, and he also has the fastest club in the circuit. In order to crowd Pittsburg out Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston must hit a fast clip at home between now and September. The club that doesn't is out of it. There isn't enough room now for any club to have a home slump and make up the gap later on. Of the three it wouldn't surprise me in the slightest to see the race come down to a final clash between Brooklyn and Pittsburg, with Philadelphia close behind. Boston doesn't look anywhere near as good as she did back in July."

THE TIP-OFF.

The main tip-off as to form, dope and the twist thereof in the National league is shown by the records.

The two clubs that lead the batting are St. Louis and Cincinnati, the only tail-end contenders.

The best fielding club, by the records, is Cincinnati. Here we have the Reds second in batting, first in fielding—and last in the race. Yet batting and fielding are supposed to be two fairly important points of baseball as the game is played.

NO ONE-MAN REIGN.

There is no one-man reign now in either golf or tennis in this country. Last summer McLoughlin beat Brookes and Wilding, but Williams beat McLoughlin and Church beat Williams.

So far this season Clarence Griffin has beaten Williams; McLoughlin has beaten Williams; Behr has beaten McLoughlin and Williams has beaten Behr.

The leaders have all been beaten—both last season and this. McLoughlin, rated as the greatest of all living tennis players, has been dropped by two of his countrymen in two important matches—and those who beat him have fallen before the charge of others.

The same holds for golf. Ouimet beat Travers at Ekwanok last fall, but Travers countered by beating Ouimet at medal play in the recent open, where the Massachusetts star was supposed to have the winning edge. Travis beat Travers at Apawamis in June.

What will happen at Forest Hills in lawn tennis and at Detroit in golf within the next fortnight should add many interesting pages to the history of American sport. For in neither sport is there any one entry whose prowess is all-prevalent.

THE BIG HUNT.

This country, and other sections of the universe, spent five years finding a man to beat Jack Johnson.

HIS NAME IS WILLARD.

Now the big hunt is on to find a man who can beat Willard. For once a champion is installed, the next process is to drop him from the heights.

The best start now at hand for discovering the master of Willard would be to match Frank Moran and Jim Coffey. The winner couldn't probably win from Willard. But the process would be fairly interesting and at the finish would give a better idea as to how good Jess of Kansas really is.

The records established by Mamaux and Alexander this season are even better than they look. Both pitchers have been working for the two weakest hitting clubs in the league—in the records; both have been working on clubs where the other pitchers have been struggling to break even on the year's count. Yet these two have flared so far beyond the rest of the N. L. field that all comparisons have been wrecked.

Walter Johnson has lost eleven games this season and in many of these he has been clubbed to a finish. The blond shrapnel from Idaho is either losing force or the old powder has come in for an off-year of unusual proportions.

Tigers and White Sox have this proposition to face—either curb the Red Sox within these next two weeks out west or consider the A. L. campaign closed out for the year.

Al Nixon Here

Al Nixon, former Cracker, who has spent the past two seasons in the Texas league, came in with Manager Smith and the bunch Wednesday from New Orleans. Nixon is en route to New York, where he will join the Brooklyn Dodgers. He had a good season with the Texans last year and his work this season has been even better than last year. As a result he will draw a try-out under Manager Wilbur Robinson.

Boxing at Columbia

A boxing show which will include twenty rounds of boxing will be put on at the Columbia theater tonight. The card is made up three matches. In the preliminary Young Joe Trent will box Young Britt. In the semi-windup, Kid Lewis will meet Kid Clark. In the main bout Greek Brown will box Bud Conley. All of these are local boys.

Double-Header Is Card Today

Crackers Play Two With the Travelers--First Game at 2:15--Matthews in Line-Up

A double header between the Crackers and Travelers is the program at Ponce de Leon this afternoon, provided weather conditions don't butt in to interfere as was the case Wednesday. The first melee will begin at 2:15 o'clock. Both Manager Smith and Manager Starr are anxious to stage these two games, as only three more days remain for the playing of the four games scheduled, and this is the last trip of the season to Ponce de Leon for the Travelers.

A new hand will appear in the line up for the Crackers in today's games. He is outfielder Matthews who finished the Sally league season with Macon. Matthews applied to Manager Smith for a job Saturday of last week before the Crackers left for their trip to New Orleans, and the local skipper agreed to give him a tryout. He will work in right field in this afternoon's games or at least one of them and Manning will be given a day's rest.

Jim Allen and Carl Thompson will draw the assignments of subduing the Travelers in the two games today. They will doubtless be opposed by Fincher and Couchman

Big Leaguers Decide to Reclaim Six Crackers

By Innis Brown

The St. Louis Browns and Pittsburg Pirates, two major league clubs who contributed toward the construction of the Cracker baseball team as it stands just now, will exercise the right of option which they hold with the Crackers according to agreements entered into at the times players were turned over to Manager Smith. The Pirates will take back Southpaw Herbert Kelly and the Browns will reclaim Catchers Joe Jenkins and Bill Rumler, Outfielders Ed Manning and Billy Lee, and First-baseman Dick Kauffman.

These two clubs have notified Manager Smith that their right of recall on these two players will be exercised. Manager Clarke of the Pirates gave notice on Kelly several days since. Manager Rickey of the Browns gave notice just today with only today and tomorrow remaining for closing under his option. It is hardly likely that any of these players will be called back before the end of the season, though it is possible that the Pirates may take Kelly up between now and the end of the season. Clarke's club still carries a chance to cop the National league pennant, and if the Pirate skipper figures that Southpaw Herb will be of any help he will ask Manager Smith to send him along.

There seems to be, an impression abroad that the Browns may recall Pitcher Scott Perry. This, however, is wrong. The Browns have no claim on Perry. The big right-hander was purchased outright from the Louisville club, after he had been tried out by the Browns and sent back to Louisville. The Browns, by virtue of the agreement between themselves and the Crackers, have the privilege of selecting one player from the Crackers at a specified price, and they may see fit to purchase Perry, if they exercise their option. Otherwise, Scotty is open to draft. Should the Browns decline to buy him and the draft miss him, he will be back with the Crackers next year.

The annual squawk of the big league scouts that there is but little promising young material in the minors this year began to go up by mid-July or possibly earlier. "Ivory Hunters" returning to their respective camps, fresh from the dope averred that unusual baseball conditions this year had cut the crop of prospects even shorter than usual, and that but few youngsters had showed anything during the season to entitle them to a trial with the big fellows.

Considerable speculation is being done as to just what players from this league will be taken up with a chance to stick. As stated above Kelly goes back to Pittsburg, and the Mobile southpaw carries better than an even chance to hold a berth with the Buccaneers next year. He has pitched great ball for the Crackers, his chief trouble being a lapse of control at times. But even his control has been good for a young lefthander, since southpaws are usually expected to be a bit erratic in their aim.

Billy Lee, and Joe Jenkins are the other of the Crackers tipped by scribes about the circuit as most likely to draw further trials. Perry is considered the most likely buy on the local roster. This brings the field down to the draft, and there is no way of telling just who will be bagged in the drafting drag net.

Several other players in the league have already been singled out for a trial. Tim Hendryx has been sold to the Yankees. Considering that Charlie Somers of the Cleveland Indians also owns or at least controls the Pelicans, it is rather surprising that Hendryx was ever allowed to get away from the Cleveland club. However, the sale to the Yankees appears from all reports to have been definitely settled, and the league's leading hitter will go for trial under Bill Donovan next spring. Elmer Miller the Mobile centerfielder is also due for trip to the Highlanders' camp.

In addition to Hendryx the Pelicans are slated to lose three others, it is reported. These are Outfielder Elmondson, Pitcher Jim Bagby and Thirdbaseman Freddy Thomas. These are understood to be slated for transfer to the Indians. This deal is doubtless in the nature of a "cover-up." Neither of these three carries a real chance to stick with the big fellows, and the transfer will mean a return exchange between the close of the current season and next season, by which the trio will revert to the Pelicans.

Manager Connie Mack, it is said, will exercise his option on Press Cruthers, the Memphis second sacker. Cruthers came to the Chicks with but slight reputation, having played in the Carolina association, but his work all season with the Chicks has been brilliant and his batting hard and consistent. Mack's efforts to land a successor to Eddie Collins to go to Philadelphia have failed, and it is possible that the Memphis recruit may ultimately fill the bill.

While no sale has been ratified, it is probable that Manager Jack Brown will take Gene Paulet, the Nashville first-baseman. Rumors and reports, lacking in official approval, have had the Yale first sacker sold to the Browns several times, and it is likely that he will join Rickey's club. "Ruby" Marshall, the Chattanooga hurler has been sold to Detroit. With Marshall goes Cunningham, but the latter was sent down to the Lookouts by the Tigers under option.

One other player from this circuit is sure to go up. He is Carl East, the lanky young Burler on the Traveler staff. East has been sold outright to the St. Louis Browns.

Considering the above, there are several others in the league who carry chances of going up by draft. Some of these have been there before, while others will make the trip for the first time during their careers. The list includes Pete Allison and Howard Merritt of Memphis, Thorpe of Little Rock, Farmer and Rogers of Nashville, Grimes and Sloan of Birmingham, Reilly and Weaver of New Orleans, and possibly a few others.

CURRENT SEASON MAY SET NEW RECORD IN NATIONAL

A new record for the forty-four years of major league baseball will be set this season, judging from the way things stack up now. Some club in the National league is going to win the pennant with a percentage mark under .588.

Since the National league was started in 1871, there have been 59 pennant struggles, 44 in the National and 15 in the American league. In all these struggles only one pennant was ever won with a mark under .600. The Detroit Tigers turned the trick in 1908 with .588. They just nosed out the Cleveland Naps.

The National race has been so torrid this season that, though they led for a long time, have not been able to get far above the .550 mark.

If any club is going to go above .588, that club will have to cut loose from the rest of the bunch and run completely away from everybody. It does not seem likely any of the clubs can do that.

There are four clubs bunched around the top and well worn of almost equal strength. None is able to pull far ahead of the other. The race is getting better all the time, so the chances for a new record in low percentage is very good.

Over in the American league things are different. There is a bigger difference in the strength of the first and second division clubs. Boston has been well over the .600 mark for some time and Detroit has been in that figure. There does not seem much chance there for the winning team will be under .600.

Expect Ruling Today On Marsans' Case

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19.—A definite ruling today on the Marsans injunction suit was promised by Federal Judge Dyer Wednesday. Marsans was a member of the Cincinnati National league club at the opening of the 1914 season. After a clash with Manager Herzog he deserted that club and joined the St. Louis Federal league club. Shortly thereafter he was prevented from playing with the Federals by a temporary injunction, which has been in force since. At the hearing a few days since Marsans testified that the local Federals are making him a semi-monthly loan of a specified amount each month.

Boston Golfer Leading Field

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Tom McNamara, of Boston, led the 119 golfers playing in the western open golf tournament Wednesday at the Glen Oak club. The Boston professional scored a par 75 for the 36-hole test. He had birdies in the morning and was only three strokes worse in the afternoon round, in which he ran a 42 and 36.

Jack Hutchinson, of Allegheny, Pa., finished second with 155 strokes. George Sargent, of "Washington, and Gilbert Nicols, of Wilmington, Del., Metropolitan open champion, were tied for third place with 156.

James Barnes, of Philadelphia, scored 157, as did Walter Hagen, of Rochester, national open champion last year; C. F. Nelson, of Oklahoma City, and A. Cunningham, of Wheeling, W. Va.

Charles Evans, Jr., four times western amateur champion and western open champion in 1910, was off his game in the forenoon, but made 78 for the second round for a total of 165. This was the best score returned by an amateur, but was tied by J. N. McDonald, amateur of Calumet club, Chicago.

The only spectacular plays were made by George Sargent, of Washington, who made the first hole, 367 yards, in two strokes in the morning and in three strokes in the afternoon.

Tigers Buy James

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 19.—Pitcher "Bill" James has been bought by Detroit from the St. Louis Browns. The price is said to have been $15,000. James will report to Manager Jennings at once. The deal has been under consideration for some time.

Application Is Made for $50,000 School Permit, Which Brings the Month's Value Close to $200,000, With Prospects of Another Apartment House Permit--Whitehall St. Location Is Leased as a Coal Yard

Application for a $50,000 permit for the high school building on South Pryor street has been made, and the permit will be issued in a few days.

Outside of this application the value of business acually granted is $140,000, which would give the month to date, including the school job, a total close to $200,000.

A $40,000 permit will be issued soon for the apartment house which S. R. Crawford is building on Durant place, but unless the general volume of business picks up considerably by September 1, the August, 1915, value will not make as good a showing as August, 1914.

WHITEHALL STREET LEASE.

COTTON IS CONTRABAND ALLIES WILL DECLARE

British Embassy Authorizes Statement, Although Announcement Still Pending

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—"The allied governments have agreed in principle that cotton is contraband of war. The exact date when this announcement shall be made is still under consideration, as well as other details connected with the proclamations."

This statement was authorized today at the British embassy.

As soon as the official announcement is made it will be disclosed also that the allied governments have prepared to stand behind the market to prevent ruinous depression of prices and minimize hardships to planters.

The American government, several days ago, was informed unofficially but authoritatively of the intention of the allied governments to make cotton contraband and was informed that they will claim a legal right for their action.

It was explained here today that the allies refrained from making cotton contraband at the outset of the war because of conditions in the United States where a large crop had been planted and a contraband order then, would in their opinion, have been far more serious.

Now, the allies contend, the cotton states have been prepared for a change in policy by reductions of acreage. Some of the cotton interests, allied quarters acknowledge, may be affected by the change, and for that reason it has been decided to stand behind the market to minimize embarrassment and to avoid a permanent decree in American cotton plantings which would be reflected in the interest of the allied countries.

The principal reason for declaring cotton contraband is that it is one of the principal sources of smokeless powder. How the allies propose to support the cotton market is not explained here.

Negro Confesses to Murder of Eleven; Hanged at Moultrie

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

All but one of these were killed after McGriff shot Mr. Washington to death and escaped, to be arrested nearly four years later. The first person killed was a deputy sheriff at Tallahassee, Fla., whose name he failed to give.

THIRD WARD WOMEN TO CLEAN UP PARK

Women of the Third Ward Improvement club have issued a call for all women of the Third ward to meet at Grant park Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock armed with rakes, brooms, shovels, hoes and other implements for the purpose of cleaning up the park.

The women have held several meetings in the park and each time they say they found the place dirty with paper andtrash left by picnickers scattered around. So they resolved upon this clean-up day to remedy these conditions.

GRANT PARK TO HAVE MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Eight new concrete bridges will be erected to replace wooden structures, which are decaying. A new spring house will be erected at the Burns street entrance, and there will be a number of other improvements.
